Firstly, unless there are hidden circumstances, I believe that your proposal will be acceptable.
You may apply for planning permission yourself. You do this via the national Planning Portal. You will need to create an account and it will require you to have documents ready to upload. https://www.planningportal.co.uk/
You may create your own drawings as long as they conform to the council's requirements for validity. https://www.camden.gov.uk/making-planning-application-supporting-information
The documents are required for public consultation, to ensure that your intentions can be understood, and so that you can be held accountable for what you finally do. The edited photos you have provided will be useful, but I would submit an existing and proposed elevation, plan and section as well.

For the purposes of this question, "related to" means related, by birth or otherwise, closely enough that a fair-minded and informed observer, having considered the facts, would conclude that there was bias on the part of the decision-maker in the Local Planning Authority.
