I have lived in Camden for the last 50 years and observed the growing popularity of Camden Lock. It has now become so crowded and overwhelmed with tourists that it has become an unpleasant feature of the weekends. I feel that until the transport system has been sorted out to cater for these enormous numbers of visitors we should not be trying to add new attractions to the area. When will the underground be improved? It has been under discussion for maybe 20 years! Because of the vast numbers of people the escalators are closed for part of the weekend and the crowds are directed down a circular staircase which feels very unsafe.

For this reason I object to the proposed plan.
