To whom it may concern,

Please do not go ahead with a proposed wheel in Camden lock. As a resident of the area since 2006 I have seen the markets go through too much change. Unfortunately something that was so incredibly unique has changed from recognition into a tacky tourist destination that soon even tourists won't want to visit. Leave the wheels for where the views are (ie. The Thames) and really think about adding something unique that will help restore the wonderful quirkiness to this part of London. Not just for tourists but for residents as well
