Dear Camden Planning,

I am writing to object once again to the proposed development at One Museum Street.

I agree with every one of the 9 points listed by Kathy Doyle on behalf of Save Museum Street Coalition, in particular the extraordinary insensitivity of the scheme which will impact the very special character of the area which thank goodness was saved from demolition following the British Museum's plan to build the British Library there, and since designated a Conservation Area.

I hope that you will reconsider the wisdom of granting permission to yet another hideous development in an historic and very attractive area which is already surrounded by Renzo Piano's complex on St Giles High Street, and new buildings on New Oxford Street, Tottenham Ct Rd, Charing X Rd and High Holborn (the Post building).

Best wishes
Rebecca John
