Dear Development Management Company,

As frequent visitors to beautiful Museum Street, my husband and I greatly value your truly historic area.

We have seen your plans to build a very large tower amid the beautiful old buildings and are shocked that you are contemplating such a project.

The tower would be an ugly monstrosity in this historic area in our opinion. It is far too large and not at all in keeping with the architecture of the area, towering over The British Museum, St George's Church and Bedford Square and overshadowing all nearby buildings. In addition, it will set a precedent that will result in more applications for similar buildings that will be difficult to refuse if this one goes ahead.

I urge you to please reconsider this plan - do not demolish old buildings but instead give them new life by designing in sympathy with the culture of the area.

Please...do not go ahead with this plan.

Kind regards,

Therese O'Connor,
