

From: Yeong Ik Kim

Sent: 06 November 2023 12:01

To: Planning

Subject: Resident's opinion on the developer's demolish plan of the Travelodge block

Dear Camden Planning Committee,

I hope this mail finds you well.

I am Yeong Ik Kim, a resident of Camden.

To my knowledge, the developer offered the plan of demolishing the historical buildings and building a new/'modern' building at the corner of Museum Street and High Holborn. (2023/2510/P and 2023/2653/L).

However, it is neither a modern building nor a new developing plan, but a monstrous concrete complex building plan. This area is a historical part of London's central area, which is surrounded by many historical, eco-friendly and humane traditional buildings that stand for British identity.

Imagine, if this central London is filled with monstrous, inhumane concrete buildings and the British Museum is surrounded by window-wall 'modern (in reality, the Soviet-style)' buildings, who will visit and love this city?

As to this matter, His Majesty the King has also been insisting on his correct and insightful view that the traditional face of London should be protected, and the inhumane developing plans must be adjusted by reflecting the British identity and tradition.

I do believe that the Camden Planning Committee members are also a lover of British culture, history and identity. I do believe that all members of the Camden Planning Committee are loyal to their sovereign, the King.

For these reasons, I would like to suggest you to make a right decision on 16th this month not only for lovers of British culture, history, Camden but also for the entire of Britain.

Thank you.

Best regards,
Yeong Ik Kim

Yeong Ik Kim

PhD Student in International Political Economy
Department of European & International Studies
School of Politics & Economics
King's College London