

Adjacent rear elevations to the north of the site

The houses north of the site on Ravenshaw Street are larger than those to the south. Rear outriggers have an eclectic mix of some quite large extensions and dormers.

Adjacent elevations to the south of the site

The houses south of the site on Ravenshaw Street are progressively smaller than those to the north as they get closer to the railway and have ever decreasing garden space. Most houses have dormers and outriggers with a mixture of flat and pitched roofs.

