2023/5339/P	Nicola Countouris	05/02/2024 15:02:52	OBJ	I object to these works. The proposed new radiators, skirtings, and other alterations would severely and irreversibly harm all 520 listed interiors. There is also no evidence that Camden has considered the disproportionate impact that these works and the individual control system of the radiators would have on residents under the PSED imposed by the Equality Act 2010. The works proposed do not appreciate the unique architectural and social value of the building. This is a II* listed building, and it is so in recognition of the unique architectural and engineering features it displays, including of course its communal heating system. The system was designed as a low key, concrete embedded/radiant wall one, precisely to allow the brutalist features of the building to manifest themselves in all their unique character. The new heating system, and in particular the surface distribution network and radiators being proposed, would irremediably and irreversibly alter that. The flats are minimalist (small) and clear walls, unhindered by piping work and radiators, are essential for residents to be able to enjoy some comfort. I am also persuaded that Camden has failed to appreciate the social implications of its proposed works. The majority of residents are council tenants, many of them from a disadvantaged socio-economic background. Radiators and individual controls would have a detrimental impact on them. It would also have a detrimental impact on the concrete fabric of the building as residents facing a choice between heating or eating would switch off their radiators which can compromise the ability of concrete to 'dry' in the winter months. It would of course also compromise the health of residents. They now have no choice as there are no individual controls. So they are obliged to leave in warm homes and the 'state' is obliged to assist them with paying the heating. That would change once 'choice' is introduced in this complex equation. While s. 1 of the EaA2010 has not been implemented, there is still a PSED for Camden to discharge in respect of a number of other characteristics, including race, that strongly intersect with socio-economic disadvantage. I have seen no evidence that Camden has discharged its PSED and believe that the application should be refused until it does. This application should therefore be unconditionally refused
