We live directly opposite the premises and fear the noise levels and use of the pavement would increase significantly. I also would be wary of the increase in delivery cycles which may now frequent the direct area. My experience of these are that without exception they pay no attention to UK laws when cycling on pavements, travelling through red lights at speed. We are shift workers and there are several businesses already which cause considerable noise as it is. Warmer weather is approaching so more people will congregate in an already busy street. Thank you.
