I work nearby and eat my packed lunch here daily, as do so many others. We know how vital green spaces are in our cities: not just because of the climate crisis, but also numerous studies on mental health prove time and time again how much we need plants trees and spaces to be. Phoenix Gardens is a rare accessible and open space outside of the relentless drive for more profit and consumption, open to all and there to all who need it. It should be protected at all costs.
