To whom it may concern

I'm concerned that healthy tree(s) are destined to be destroyed in order to erect an office block on Museum Street., Central London

It would be better to fix up some of the old empty buildings and make them good again, some of them would look amazing with the right work and investment.

Trees are so important to our ecology, especially polluted central London where we have to commute and work everyday, its essential we have lots of trees to absorb and clean the air and bring biodiversity to the city.

I object to the destruction of these trees please there must be an alternative solution where everything benefits.

Many thanks
