It would lose all the internal features and be reduced to nothing more than external decoration. And this huge edifice would block the sun from Giles Churchyard, the playground, the gardens, and the flats below, which already struggle with minimal light, this would make the area dark most of the time. Also the adjacent streets are residential and will be badly overlooked. The back streets aren't just service roads, people live here. What about the noise and congestion from vans and trucks servicing a ten floor hotel restaurant complex? This is a hotel that would be better suited to somewhere like Leicester Sq, not here, it's too large and the wrong location.
