It is a valuable habitat for insects and birds, especially the tits and is a beautiful sight in spring outside our back windows. It also provides much needed shade to the communal garden. The crab apple is also in need of a bit of a prune but 1 metre is excessive and, again, it is a valuable habitat for insects and birds and creates shade, again, for the communal garden. It is also a delight to see in the Spring when in bloom. We would object to cherry being felled and would also object to excessive pruning of the crab apple.
