

Having now read the detailed and carefully researched information (in comments from Alison, Simon Parry-Wingfield) the proposed building will inevitably have a deleterious, damaging impact on many trees in the proximity of the site and their extensive underground root systems.

This application appears to provide no benefits whatever to the natural environment or wider concerns of this Conservation area, rather it would add to the precarity of our local nature and wildlife and should be turned down.

Yours sincerely, Jane Butler.

Dear Sofie,

We would like to object to the above application.

We would like to support the objection of Alison and Simon Parry-Wingfield.

I have seen her Arboricultural Report to understand the impact of the proposed application on her trees.

We support her belief that her trees might be damaged by the proximity of this large new building and thus a negative impact on the Belsize Conservation Area.

Regards,
