This stretch of Finchley Road has been crying out for some thoughtful, well-designed development, and this looks like exactly that. Hopefully, if it's approved and gets underway soon, it'll spark more investment in the neighbourhood, bringing better facilities, more visitors, and stronger local revenues — all of which would be a huge benefit to residents and businesses.

New College Court already stands quite tall in the area, and introducing additional tall buildings nearby could seriously impact the health of the protected tree behind it by limiting its access to natural light.
