About the role

“All Age; All Local” Family Help teams based in Family Hubs

Camden’s Family Hubs were launched in summer 2023 with the aim of providing an access point in each neighbourhood to universal and early intervention services for families with children of all ages; 0-19 and up to 25 years for children and young people with special educational needs.

The Family Hub model brings together a range of partners and practitioners co-located in Camden’s children’s centres and family hubs, working together to support families in their neighbourhoods and communities across Camden.

This place-based approach to locating family help in Camden’s communities and neighbourhoods, alongside the development of Camden’s relational practice framework provides the foundation for reducing inequality and delivering effective prevention and early intervention services for children and their families.

Camden’s Relational Practice Framework

Camden’s relational practice framework supports all practitioners to adopt relational and systemic approaches in their work with families, alongside community empowerment, valuing social justice and equity as much as relationships built on trust, honesty and compassion.
