There are 2 late-night bars, 2 pubs, the Forum (when in operation), 3 restaurants all within seconds walk from these conveniences. I submit, therefore, that there are enough establishments selling alcohol (plus 2 off-licences) in this small area of Kentish Town. There would be added noise (if a late-night licence were granted there would be more), more problems with parking both in Fortess + Highgate Road and more customers lurking about late in the evening. When the Bell + Gate reopens there will, inevitably, be more Cooffall. I do not think that this area should be turned into an extension of Camden Town with more bars. I also think that additional cars may well impede ~~the~~ fire engines' route + buses C2 + 214 progress. It would be better to reopen the site as a public convenience much needed despite shops' co-operation with local.

Please continue on extra sheets if you wish

Page 2 From the Health + Safety angle, the pavement is very narrow + I can see drunken customers lurching out into traffic and causing accidents.

From the anti-social point of view, I have already cited extra noise, especially when the Forum is having an event. More bars encourages more bad behaviour.
