If this gets full planning permission, there will be a big disruption to the overall building. People who usually go to the next door building to do Yoga will not be very inspired to go to a building site, with noise, dust etc. There are lots of Jobs that will be jeopardise if trade goes down. This people have been going there for years and it is completely disregarding the big disruption that this will cause. Please don't allow this ti happen.

Tri yoga is part of our community. Its taking away from the locals and just more development which has no value. I think the value of doing this needs to be considered.

The buildings should not be changed. Primrose Hill is unique because of the diversity of shops, residences and special places like Triyoga. Adding more residential area at the expense of the rest of the parts of Primrose Hill will change it for the worse. Triyoga in particular is a much loved yoga studio which brings a larger community together, which is very much desired in our increasingly divergent culture.

I am saddened to hear that triyoga may be turned into residential flats, triyoga has provided a great addition to the local community, bringing many together as well as many people from outside primrose hill into the community. The area is already well served with many flats and residential accommodation and changing Triyoga into more flats will only serve to render it as soulless as other overdeveloped areas. I really feel also that local businesses will also be adversely affected during an already difficult time, not only by the loss of a fantastic community yoga & therapy centre such as triyoga but also by what will no doubt be months and months of invasive, noisy and dusty building works with the result of only 4 homes being built, in my opinion the loss of a centre such as triyoga which provides health and connection through yoga classes attended by so many over the course of a week for 4 residential luxury apartments is almost unbelievable! Surely this cannot be even worthy of consideration? I am a Camden leaseholder in Kentish Town and have long wondered about the sanity of the those in the planning department. As our city is developed into more and more luxury apartments one wonders what this vision really holds for the future of Camden. Primrose Hill is a beautiful and historic village, losing Triyoga there will be another blow to the individuality of these villages as the stamp of generic conformity for the rich blights our city.

It is extremely regrettable that such an application is being considered.

The Triyoga Centre provides an invaluable service to the Community and the Residents. I am a Camden resident and use the Centre regularly. I have also relied on the Centre to provide remedies and therapies that have helped lead a normal life. Living under the stresses of an urban lifestyle the Centre's role is critical.

I am a user of Triyoga centre within the site which is proposed to be developed. I am concerned that changing the building on this site to residential use will mean that the business which is Tri Yoga will be impacted and therefore my use of this as an important place for my life.

The current tenants of the property, Triyoga, are an integral part of Primrose Hill - more so than any other gym or yoga facility due to its exceptional standards in holistic fitness which have benefited many members - both residents from and nearby to Primrose Hill.

On a personal level, I have for many years been troubled by autoimmune diseases and Triyoga is the most convenient centre for me. It has also been the best, after trying out many different places, and today I am the road of recovery without medication largely due to the wonderful classes and treatments at Triyoga. I also find that it is different from the other Triyoga centres in London purely because of the peaceful location in Primrose Hill and it is clearly apparent that the residents that do attend are very happy.

My story is one of many, I am sure of that, and hope that Triyoga remains at the property helping to change all of our lives. Primrose Hill will not remain the same after the development of the proposed residential units.

Response:

I would be terribly disappointed if Triyoga were to leave the current primrose hill location. The triyoga prenatal and postnatal classes have been vital to my journey into parenthood, fostering new friends, providing education, massage, and an invaluable support group during this delicate life stage. I cannot stress the importance of access to a community of new mothers in a hyper local radius surrounding home. Triyoga supports and promotes this type of community. Please reconsider the development plans as they would absolutely disrupt this community.
