	12-MAR-13	OBJ	The loss of the Intrepid Fox would be a disaster for Music
	-		It would be a dear shame, and a severe blow to the London rock scene to lose this venue. Several existing venues have vanished to be

I would like to know exactly how 8 newbuild flats in this prime West End location, in keeping with the other plans for the area, could ever be described as & Aquot; affordable housing ", and how long before some kind of deal is done to rake more money from the building? We have already lost the Astoria, the LA2 and Metros to Crossrali, and there may be other venues or well known establishments under threat. I would like to know how they can justify closure/demolition of venues and bars that made the area what it is - the music hub of Central London - to somehow "improve" the area when it
	40.14.5	001	was these very places that made it what it is, and/or carried on the legacy. Then replace it with shiny new buildings with no character, soul or history to
4367935	10-MAR-13	OBJ	maintain a false image of what they are selling these plans to the public as?. This happened before when Wetherspoons took over the old Marquee club.

		I strongly object to the redevelopment of the Intrepid Fox site. It is a landmark of London. It provides a unique pub experience for a large section of the community who enjoy rock music and culture. It is easy to see the strong attachment people have to this public house, since people went to the trouble of relocating it to the present site after it was first ousted from its original location. This does not happen to ordinary pubs. This one is special and needs to be preserved.
4371163 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	I have no objection to the offices being converted to housing and feel they would benefit from the Intrepid Fox being preserved. The Intrepid Fox is an important and wonderful drinking establishment where I have had many good nights. It's hard to find such a lovely joint with such 4371247 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	I object to the development of the area around Centre Point to be turned into residential housing Disgrace

4371248 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	Don't bring down this bar!!! One of the very best places in London for metal, rock, etc.
		Please do this. Please knock down the Intrepid Fox. Please put another nail in the coffin of British History. Please destroy another component of that "thing" that makes us British, gives us the right to hold the "Music Center of the World" title and proves our individuality and diversity. Please take away anything, any place, any idea, any institution that does not allude to the pursuit of financial gain no matter the cost. Am I appearing to be idealistic? Of course I am! With out that we just become concrete people trudging between our concrete jobs and our concrete homes (sparkling though that concrete might be) living our concrete lives with no hope or joy or happiness. Please do not take this away from us. Please listen to Patrick Begent. Don't dismiss his and our hopes to the Developers' quest for more and more money.
4380732 23-MAR-13	OBJ	There is always another way!
4371387 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	Dont get rid of the intrepid fox!! we dont need more offices in London! if you continue to get rid of what makes London unique,London will just become another faceless city!
4371388 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	You can keep the fox by not developing the lower floors of Centre Point House for residential especially as, during the current climate, commercial properties are unused all over London. You just have to look through buisness premises for sale adds to see that. If people need commercial property, it seems a much better idea to refurbish existing premises and therefore regenerating areas rather than creating new potential social wastelands. This development will destroy a valuable cultural site, one of the key venues that showcase and support the unique and diverse demographics that makes London a unique city.
4371390 12-MAR-13	ОВЈ	The venue has a global reputation and is one of the last remaining venues of this type in central London
4371391 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is a treasured hang out for music lovers! It's a fantastic place for people to meet others who are like minded in their music interests! Why yet again does the government want to piss off society by introducing even more housing which isn't going to be affordable for your average working class citizen anyway! I cannot fathom it! I've been informed to "A possible Rumour" that the Intrepid Fox is going to be demolished? I would like to make a point that "In my opinion" this would be a tragic loss as the Intrepid Fox has been around (okay not on its current site) for many a year, it's not JUST for metal and goth fans but you will find an abundance of different cultures who visit, even office people in their later ages, okay the only strange rule is no ties allowed, that's great as it helps everyone to be on the same level and everyone talks to everyone else, it was already closed down from the previous location, and in my opinion it is at home where it is, 4369404 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	I can only ask you not to dispose of it but to help it keep its history Although I am against the proposed closure and demolition of The Intrepid Fox, if a suitable new venue is found by the acquiring company within a shirt distance from it's current location then I believe many peoples objections would be softened or 'withdrawn'. The issue is, that if no suitable new venue is found and there is no view to relocated The Fox (the second time this has happened) then this will not sit well
	OBJ OBJ	with the rock and metal community that have been going to the pub, at both locations, for many, many years. No! We do not want this! Intrepid Fox must stay!!!
	OBJ	Destruction of yet another vital premises in the TCR area. An always thriving and well ran bar that hosts guests from around the world under common interest. It would be utterly shameful to see this proceed.
	0.00	This is a fantastic, world famous, community pub which adds character to the area. Loosing this pub will take away part of the identity of Denmark Street as a music hub in London and will move it one step closer to a generic high street which dimisses any attempt by local businesses to make a living! we already have enough chain businesses in Oxford Street and the surrounding areas! It would be another blow after loosing The Astoria, one of Londons best music venues!
4370306 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't destroy another part of London's music hertiage.
4370308 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is more then just a pub for some. Ive attended a church there and it has helped me and people I know personally in giving us a community.
		The Intrepid Fox has long been a focal point for the alternative community within London. Indeed, it has attracted international visitors. The availability of a live music scene is an important cultural and financial asset to any town.
4370310 12-MAR-13 (OBJ OBJ COMMNT	The Intrepid Fox can pull in an audience from miles around. But it isn't just this venue that benefits. Local restaurants, bars and shops will all profit from a greater number of people visiting the area - people who might not have gone otherwise. FUCK OFF THAT'S NOT RIGHT just stop it
	OBJ OBJ	Awful idea to get rid of an establishment so intrinsically connected to the London culture scene. This just highlights why they gave it to Liverpool last time I object to this application
4370410 12-MAR-13 (OBJ OBJ	This is the second time the Intrepid Fox will have had to close just so it won't look out of place with other building developments. The Astoria had to close in this area, and now this. Not good enough. It shouldn't have to close. Don't redevelop the Intrepid Fox!
4200004 42 MAD 42	00.1	The Intrepid Fox is a hub for alternative London culture, and by destroying it the council will be showing true disregard for diversity of culture, and shouting about its real interest in making as much money as possible. In the last decade, London had lost almost all of its Rock/Alternative heritage, with numerous venues being forced to close or relocate. Most rock clubs are now sadly, a distant memory. And London is clearly becoming a sanitised, big business-low culture area geared towards tourists, while neglecting locals. Granting planning permission for the Fox to be destroyed will be the final nail in the coffin, and 4368994 12-MAR-13 (OBJ	a travesty for the London rock and metal scene. I am writting ot comment on the redevlopment of this site. The demolition of the Intrepid Fox bar should not be allowed. It is about all that is left in the Tottenham Court Road area that hasn't been demolished for Cross Rail and after the loss of the Astoria, is probably the only World famous rock venue left in Central London. The demolition of Fox would be a great loss to the whole of London, if not the country as it is a tourist destination as well as a much loved bar for regulars
	OBJ OBJ	such as myself loonic venue in London, it would be a shame to see gone!!

4371262 12-MAR-13	OBJ SUPPRT OBJ	A much loved and well frequented bar shouldn't be lost to a greedy developers lust for more cash. London is becoming a sterile, indenti-kit city with nothing to tell one town from anotherhave you heard that London was once a thriving, trend setting city? If we continue to keep closing down places like the Fox London will become just another retail dump. the only rock bar i london i visit when i'm in london so they can't close my bar. we rockers need this place OBJECTION As a Camden resident, I am opposed to the planned redevelopment of the Intrepid Fox. This was one of the few premises in the area not to be affected by the cross-rail redevelopment, many others of which have since been demolished. At the time that crossrail got the go-ahead, it was expected that at least
	OBJ COMMNT	some of the musically and historically significant premises in the area would survive, with the Intrepid Fox being one of them. However, this recent proposal undermines the previously stated intention to retain at least some such premises. Don't close this as well!!!

4371277 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The location as is currently brings much more to the area than an equivalent area of flats and conventional restaurants would.
		To change this area, you'd be losing The Intrepid Fox, the highlight and liberation of its area, alongside the musical themed area by Denmark Street. This is the only bar in London I love and feel accepted as an Alternative individual. It has become a tourist attraction to all who dress gothic/metal and deserves to be preserved. It has earned it's fame for its unique atmosphere and diversity, so I don't want to see it go. 4371366 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The first bar my friends in London took me to was the Intrepid Fox. The music was great, the ambiance awesome and I just loved it. Over the years I have met many people who have visited London and went to the IF. I have lived in London many times and return to the IF each time. It would be such a shame to change it. You can build houses anywhere - leave this bar alone. There are too many people who love it and it's now a part of our history. I am writing from Las Vegas, USA. I am Australian, but also a British Citizen. I will continue to spread the word to stop these plans. Thank for reading.

437 1330 12-WAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is a London institution, and offers so much more in terms of tourist attraction, and social community than residential housing ever could.
		The bar has a warm, open, welcoming atmosphere, and is regularly full of good natured people brought together by their love of music. I'm an accountant, i don't dress in black tshirts or a leather jacket, but i love heavy metal and have always felt welcome at the Intrepid Fox. I've no doubt that turning the site into residential space will serve to create the type of properties that only benefit the wealthy and price the working classes out of affordable London housing.
		London is one of the greatest cities in the world precisely because it is full of institutions such as the Intrepid Fox. This area has already seen many legendary music venues closed due to the Crossrail development (the Metro club for example), but where that could be viewed as a necessary evil in order to progress a travel infrastructure project that will benefit millions of Londoners, a redevelopment solely into residential housing will benefit far fewer people,
4370074 12-MAR-13	OBJ	and probably only those wealthy enough to be able to afford housing in such a prime central location, or wealthier landlords looking to eat up yet more Lc
		Objection!
		I am mainly objecting to the fact that you keep trying to bring down independent bars/pubs like this one. Why don't you make room for housing by trying to demolish a weatherspoons; At least that way they can just go down the road or catch a bus to another of 4370078 12-MAR-13	OBJ	the same generic pub.

The current location of "The Intrepid Fox" bar has significant historic and cultural relevance. London has been stripped of Rock and Heavy Metal venues over the last few years, including the legendary Marquee club and the Astoria Theatre which was demolished to make way for a crossrail station. Both of these were situated in Charring Cross Road and no equivalent alternative has been supplied although promises were made by government that this would be addressed. This has meant all suitable venues in London are situated in North London meaning anyone situated south of the river Thames has longer and more expensive travelling to suitable equivalent venues, and having to leave early to get the last trains home. The Intrepid fox has been historicity relevant to the Rock/Alternative scene in London, being first situated in Soho and moving to the end of Denmark street (Tin Pan Alley - a major historic landmark for musicians all over the world). Its history has been associated with major label artists for the last 25 years. The sad fact is that the venues, bars and sites left in London must be preserved else outlets for music and performance will be lost forcing most fans of rock read to not need to lose any more social hubs for more housing/office blocks These types of amazing bar are few and far between in London, so taking away our rarely found bar will have a negative affect. Who'd miss a normal nightclub? No body as there are many to pick from. Leave the Fox be and utilise the plentiful disused office blocks or uninhabited properties. Do not shut down the intrepid fox! London cannot afford to lose yet iconic source of alternative music and culture. This is a shameful move and should not go ahead. It's a brilliant place and shouldn't go This would be an absolute travesty
		This is one of London's most iconic rock and metal destinations. First you allowed the Astoria to die, and now the Fox and don't even get me started on Camden Market the other year.
		London is one of the world's leaders in culture and arts. Destroying this legacy will leave you with a sterilized city, devoid of young talent who will have gone elsewhere. It's not as if our town isn't big enough - housing can be built in plenty of other places without having to put people out of work and angering all the Fox's longtime supporters.
4371552 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I urge you to reject this planning application. The alternative music scene is just one of London's many faces, and as such deserves to be supported.

		It is not a suitable location for residential development. Also, this development threatens the existence of the Intrepid Fox. 		The Intrepid Fox is a very unique bar and venue, unmatched by any other in the city (let alone the borough of Camden); its demolition would be an irreplaceable loss to the Camden community. Furthermore, it caters to a certain taste and aesthetic incomparable to any other venue in London; many

4371620 12-MAR-13 COMM
4371621 12-MAR-13 OBJ	I strongly object to this proposition. The very notion of 'affordable' housing in the West End of London is laughable (affordable to who exactly?) The West End is not a residential area and to add this type of housing in the area will stick out like a sore thumb. Although I'm sure it may not be readily apparent, the prices this accommodation will sell for are yet another example of the working class being overlooked by the middle class for their own gain. There is no way anybody but for the middle class can afford properties like this.

This is a culturally significant venue and must stay The intrepid fox is fantastic and invaluable cultural venue, moving it would be a disaster residents and a valuable economic source for the area would be lost as it draws a crowd from near and far. We need to keep the intrepid fox As the Intrepid Fox is a music venue for many alternative-genre musicians, converting the pub to houses will negatively impact the livelihoods of these musicians, as well as depriving the local alternative community of a place to socialise. 4371628 12-MAR-13 4371629 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	It is a disgrace to turn The Intrepid Fox into flats, there is too much social and musical value, vital to the musical economy of London in this historic venue. Please do not demolish the Intrepid fox, this is one of the best pubs in London. It's unique style and character make it a valuable location. There is no demand for housing in this area. Additional residences will add to the already congested nature of the area, bringing additional traffic, which road systems will struggle to cope with.
4371651 12-MAR-13	OBJ	In addition, there are no amenities or services in the area that will adequately serve this new population. Even if housing were required in this area, I am not satisfied that adequate provision has been made for affordable housing.

4371686 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is perhaps the most popular bar for fans of rock and metal music in London and should not be destroyed to achieve the completely unrealistic goal of affordable housing in central London.
4373857 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Completly opposing this idea very few good music bars still exist and this should not be turned into houses
4373875 13-MAR-13	COMMNT	Please keep the Intrepid Fox - it's original and I love it there.

I always go to the Intrepid Fox when I go to gigs in Camden and I feel that it is a key element of the alternative scene in Camden and would be sorely missed. Tourists visit Camden to experience the unique alternative scene there and this brings in a lot of money. The Intrepid Fox is just one unique and quirky pub which contributes to the atmosphere that tou and locals love. Destroying any of these places reduces the wide range of alternative venues which is one of the truly unique and special things about Camden. If the choice of pubs is reduced then the place will loose its appeal. do not close the fox. it is one of the last icons of true london. keep the fox where it is! I object to the aforementioned plans. I am against this. Retain the Intrepid Fox pub that is located on 15 St Giles High St, WC2H

4371696 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	Please do not destroy any more of London's iconic music venues. The Intrepid Fox holds many memories and it would be heartbreaking to lose it again. I have no objection to the lower floors of Centre Point tower being changed from offices to residential, or to the lower floors of Centre Point House being changed to retail and restaurant uses. HOWEVER, I DO OBJECT TO THE REDEVELOPMENT OF THE INTREPID FOX SITEI Whilst affordable housing is an important issue, The Intrepid Fox is a very important cultural site to a specific community, and as such, I believe this deserves some respect and 4371697 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	consideration.
		To whom it may concern
		The intrepid fox encourages hundreds of people to visit this area of the city every night. It generates customers for other establishments in the area for example food and taxi services. The bar is also at the heart of one of London's many diverse communities bringing people from all walks of life, different example look and take services. The bar is also at the relation of the bounds many stretch communities bringing begin from an ward of including parts of the world and beliefs together through a love of music and the exhibition of young musical talent. I believe London prides itself on it's rich culture and The Intrepid Fox needs to be recognized as the center point and facilitator of large friendly gatherings of people to celebrate/perform/watch and spend more money in the area than a few residents could.
		It is the responsibility of the people who make decisions about planning applications that the population of any city has access to a diverse range of entertainment and leisure. The loss of The Intrepid Fox as a live music venue and bar would leave a large void in central London for the people who go
4374369 13-MAR-	13 OBJ	there. It would also dishearten many creative young people who would no longer have The Intrepid Fox as a place to start their music and entertainment
		Developing a tower block launch as Centre Point is a retrograde step for housing in London. I believe the impact of living in such dwellings has a negative impact on residents health and well being and object on that basis. I also object because the road layout and traffic levels are dangerous so close to housing. I object that there is not enough green space or play areas.
		I object to the closure of The Intrepid Fox because it is the only free venue in Central London supporting young musicians, providing a safe and professional environment to learn their craft. I strongly believe that if planning permission is granted, the developers have a duty to find and find an 4374371 13-MAR-	13 OBJ	alternative building for the Fox.
4372019 13-MAR-	13 COMMNT	It would be a shame to lose such a vibrant and popular music venue, especially since the Astoria was taken down a few years ago for the same reason.

It would be a real loss to the area if this unique venue was demolished to make way for more bland coffee shops and lame eateries. Doesn't London have enough of that sort of thing already? Why does every bit of London have to look like every other bit of London? I, and many others, will be hugely disappointed if this decision goes forward. It will be the loss of another great bit of London, along with the Astoria, etc.

		The Intreped Fox is unique and valuable as such. It is a vibrant well loved venue for like minded music fans to meet and enjoy their passion. There are not many venues like this in London and those that do exist are rapidly being replaced by bars that do not and could not even attempt to create such a great atmosphere. Whilst it is understandable that there is a need to create more affordable housing it should not be at the expense of a place that brings so much joy and forfillment to so many people from around this great city (and Europe). We should be ensuring we do not loose a characteristic, inspiring

I really hope this does not fall on deaf ears or ones that do not understand the passion of this very unique Bar!! I wish to be informed of said decision!!
4371706 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is a very well known and popular alternative pub; It has been a strong venue for up and coming bands to get a foot in the door and it brings in tourism foot traffic from all over the UK and, indeed, the world. I strongly object to this redevelopment, as it would remove a central focus point of alternative and metal culture in London, as well as a well known landmark 4371707 12-MAR-13	NOBJ OBJ	and gathering place. why ?
4371709 12-MAR-13	ОВЗ	To whom it may concern
		The intrepid fox encourages hundreds of people to visit this area of the city every night. It generates customers for other establishments in the area for example food and taxi services. The bar is also at the heart of one of London's many diverse communities bringing people from all walks of life, different parts of the world and beliefs together through a love of music and the exhibition of young musical talent. I believe London prides itself on it's rich culture and The Intrepid Fox needs to be recognized as the center point and facilitator of large friendly gatherings of people to celebrate/perform/watch and spend more money in the area than a few residents could.
		It is the responsibility of the people who make decisions about planning applications that the population of any city has access to a diverse range of entertainment and leisure. The loss of The Intrepid Fox as a live music venue and bar would leave a large void in central London for the people who go
4374372 13-MAR-13	OBJ	there. It would also dishearten many creative young people who would no longer have The Intrepid Fox as a place to start their music and entertainment
4374373 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't replace the Fox with housing. It's a place dear to many people's hearts. Many bands were given the opportunity to start out by playing there, the people you meet are amazing unique minded individuals and the Fox is an iconic bar for all of us. Once again the public must run to the aid of important landmarks and music venues for which London is rightly revered.
4374374 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Losing The Intrepid Fox would be a blight on the fringe and creative musical landscape famous the world over. Surely there is a compromise position that can be found. As it stands I object to the current planning position.
4374376 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't shut down this wonderful venue :(Save the fox!!!!
4374377 13-MAR-13	COMMNT	Absolutely not. The Intrepid Fox is one of the best bars in London for people part of the heavy metal sub-culture.
		To lose this bar would be to lose something really special in London. The people there are friendly, they're unique and they host great nights promoting new and upcoming London talent. When places like this close, what suffers the most is the talented musicians who need a place to play so they can get their art out there. The Fox does this brilliantly and closing it down will hurt ordinary Londoners who are part of this subculture and hurt artists who are trying to spread their talent. It's about community!
		I've also found it to be one of the safest and most welcoming bars I've ever been into in London. Although, I was once told off there because I was dressed TOO smartly! I had to take my tie off before they would serve me, but it was all in good humour.
4370347 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	I have never ever witnessed any drunken violence or illegal substances being used in the Fox, whereas I have in other places in the area. 4369222 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Objection! OBJECTION!
		It is a great public house! Its been opened for 222 YEARS!
		That surely says something!
		That would literally be like demolishing a castle that's been around for 300 years, to build flats on it. How can that make any sense at all!
		This is a vital peace of history. It has stood the tests of time! It would be ripping away a part of England's history! How is that fair? Famous celebrities of metal, Rock n Roll, Goth and Punk have Hung out in there! Some with us still and some sadly are not with us.
		A LOT of my Friends have spent time in that pub, They could have CHOSE to go elsewhere, but something drew them to go into The Intrepid Fox. This is

I oppose the closing of the intrepid Fox for housing development.

Why do all places people to go for entertainment & pries and places people to go for entertainment & pries are far to many expensive housing developments being built in london at present (just look along the embankment for example).

Not everybody likes going to the theatre or going into the massively overpriced bars & please please please keep the Intrepid Fox open as it provides much pleasure & pleasure & amp; a different form of entertainment for many many people.

		The Intrepid Fox is one of the last bastions of the rock and metal scene in London. Over the last 10 years we've lost nearly everything. The Astoria 1 and 2, Sin Night Club, Camden has turned so widely alternative it isn't a hub for anything anymore. The Intrepid Fox is all we've got left. It's famous nationwide as a gathering point for rock and metal fans across the country. It's a part of London's history. It's the heartbeat of a whole community, people who are I

4374533 14-MAR-13	OBJ	This pub is a great little part of town that needs to be preserved
4374583 14-MAR-13	OBJ	Simply one of the best bars in London. Situated perfectly too. It would be a travesty if we lost such a good bar, we have already lost the Astoria.
4370881 12-MAR-13	OBJ	There are all ready too many people in this country, address the population control before you destroy key parts of the community.
		I have worked in the West End of London for the past twelve years and while it is still an interesting place, with developments like this it will soon end up being as boring as Kensington or the Kings Road. Surely there should be more to town planning than making money. The Intrepid Fox has already been 4370882 12-MAR-13	OBJ	forced to move once. There is nowhere else like it in the area and it's loss would make the whole of the St Giles are a much less interesting place. 		Places like The Fox are becoming extinct, making way for main stream bars trendy clubs, flats etc. Rock, metal, grunge, alternative

		This bar hosts an entire community of people. Demolishing it would be disregarding an entire community and subculture that exists in London. It caters for a niche audience that want to enjoy rock music which is so embedded in the culture and history of London. Housing should not be the priority of this area, as Soho is known for two things, the gay community and trhe rock community. It's beautiful that these two groups of people can survive next to each other in a world where they are expected to hate one another.

		By knocking down the Intrepid Fox, there will be an adverse effect on economy in the area. Tin Pan Alley, Decadence, Crobar, The Borderline, all these historic landmarks of the area thrive on the draw of The Intrepid Fox. By making this landmark, which has been in the area for years now, disappear you are conflicting with the character of the area. The Intrepid Fox is a very popular and well loved place for a certain music demographic and is even a tourist destination to those who want to see metal themed bars outside of Camden Town.
		Destroying this for housing would be an abomination and I strongly oppose it.

		The Intrepid Fox has long been a focal point for the alternative community within London. Indeed, it has attracted international visitors. The availability of a live music scene is an important cultural and financial asset to any town, as Feargal Sharkey said
		" A successful live music venue, theatre or museum can pull in an audience from miles around. But it isn't just the one venue that benefits.
		Local restaurants, bars and shops will all profit from a greater number of people visiting the area - people who might not have gone otherwise" http://gu.com/p/xgb2p.

4370269 12-MAR-13	OBJ	OK, I'm currently overseas but use this venue every time I'm back in London. There are fewer and fewer live venues in London catering for smaller bands and the rock music fraternity as it is. This is a great place and should not be allowed to be closed down. 4370280 12-MAR-13	OBJ	My whole Londonner social life is due to the Intrepid Fox.
4370281 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox has long been a magnet for lovers of live music. To redevelop the site into housing would detract from the spirit of culture which London is famous for. It seems the inner city crawl and destruction of prime musical and entertainment landmarks is upon us again.
		There's been far too many closures of seminal drinking holes and entertainment venues in central london over the past 5 years, by building on the seats of these establishments property magnates are sucking the life out of these once savvy streets of London and forcing people out of their social 'homes from home'.
		This all adds to the catastrophic homogenisation of the 'high street', adds to this horrid 'brand world' most towns and this city prescribes to be in the UK and adds to the pockets of the crooked serial property business magnate.
		What have the Candy bros done for London? Apart from made more characterless buildings for the foreign rich to buy and keep empty or to buy to wash their money in.
		By turning this plot into another high profit, high-rise for the rich you are letting the moral-free businesses rise and prosper in the face of the majority of londoners.
4372172 13-MAR-13	COMMNT	I oppose.
4370038 12-MAR-13	OBJ	There a so few genuine bars like The Intrepid Fox around anymore. All you ever see are the big chains dominating the high streets. The atmosphere and community spirit found in The Intrepid Fox is second to none, and the Soho area of London would be a far worse place without it. Please do not remove the Intrepid Fox from the site where it sits. It is the only truly cultured and long standing place in London that offers what it does to it's customers. It truly is one of a kind, and removing it would be detrimental to retaining the history and culture of this City. I regularly attend the Intrepid Fox, and would not consider visiting any other site for my leisure activities; a feeling shared by many of it's customers without
4370039 12-MAR-13	OBJ	a doubt.
4370040 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I object to the development of this site. The fox is well known across the globe. I have met Aussies, kiwis, yanks, swedes, Danish, Germans and many of nationalities that have visited the fox and loved it. A fantastic venue for London and for all those bands that play there. Do not close the fox!!! I strongly object to this development of the Intrepid Fox public house in Soho. London is an ancient city and part of its strong appeal, to tourists and people from around the UK, is its strong history. This is gradually being eroded by developers who will suck the life out of the city. The Intrepid Fox is always busy, even over the past 4 years and is a draw for tourists and visiting celebrities from all over the world.
4370041 12-MAR-13 4370042 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Keep the Fox and don't turn London into a bland city!!! We need the fox! Sop killing real london We must keep the Intrepid Fox open, its a huge part of London's alternative scene and has been a fantastic place for many years.
4370043 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Stop closing and changing some of London's famous places. I object to the above proposal for two main reasons. Firstly, there are surplus council properties in Camden (albeit neglected and under financed by the council - perhaps th council should focus on maintaining their current properties!) and therefore the argument for there to be affordable homes is obtuse. Secondly, there IS a need for a range of businesses and entertainment in the area, particularly with the loss of the Astoria. For the area to be economically sound, the council needs to attract a range of customers, and redeveloping The Fox will cut out a large customer base who also contribute to the wider
4371798 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Camden economy. The area is slowly losing all it's musical heritage. Having lost the Astoria club nearby, the Intrepid Fox is one of a handful of bars/venues in central London which has already been moved from it's original location is a popular place for a variety of alternative people who help create the cosmopolitan atmosphere

4371802 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	This is a fantastic unique pub with a great niche. This isn't just " yet another weatherspoons" but a place of cultural significance.

Whilst I am not a Camden resident, I am a frequent visitor to this area for both work and social activities. Please consider my comments below.

It is my opinion that the displacement of local businesses related to this application will adversely affect the area concerned. Denmark Street and surround are a hive of activity for the music industry, and the change in character will damage this long standing reputation and reduce trade, both in the goods and service sectors.

I would happily receive communication on this subject...

			The current location of " The Intrepid Fox" bar has significant historic and cultural relevance. London has been stripped of Rock and Heavy Metal venues over the last few years, including the legendary Marquee club and the Astoria Theatre which was demolished to make way for a crossrail station. Both of these were situated in Charring Cross Road and no equivalent alternative has been supplied although promises were made by government that this would be addressed. This has meant all suitable venues in London are situated in North London meaning anyone situated south of the river

The site is situated in the middle of London's west en Leave the intrepid Fox alone, stop destroying evertything that is interesting about London! This pub is a landmark that brings people into what is left of Tottenham Court Road. I ave some of te most fun and memory making nights in te fox and would hate to see it made into houses! I object to the plan. The Intrepid Fox is one of the best and unfortunately very few pubs left for rock lovers. It is a much loved bar and an integral part of London life in that area. Please can we keep these places instead of wiping out the good old stuff and replacing it with new builds. Its these places that make people want to visit London. Soon there will only be places to live and work, and nowhere for leisure time. This development has to be stopped. Objection - it's well loved venue with genuine character, great atmosphere and good location - should not be changed/removed/moved in any way Objection to redevelopment of centrepoint tower, which will take away yet another music venue to add to the list dwindiling cultural centres in north and central london to which this venue(the intrepid fox) and the run of denmark st are the last remaining few The fox is far too important to the community to be demolished This is a travesty. The Intrepid Fox is a vital part of the London Metal community and would be an absolute disgrace if this bar was lost. There must be Brownfield sites available within the borough available for development I'm very disappointed when I heard the news that another great Rock/Heavy Metal pub could end up going because another bunch of flats for people that I have met people from all over the world who have visited the venue! These people have visited on recommendations from word of mouth and international websites that advertise the Intrepid Fox as one of London's premier alternative drinking and socialising venue. There have been numerous famous bands to visit. The pub also hosts and helps to promote local bands. I am a Londoner and you would need to travel far and look wide for a pub of this caliber!! From the venue its self to the decor it is an amazing site. I have been a patron since the first day it opened its doors. You would be robbing the area of an alternative venue for friends and industry members from networking. The venue brings national and international revenue to the area! 		I love this bar! This is where I met many of my good friends, kissed my boyfriend for the first time many years ago! Everyone who goes there knows everyone else - it's a community and the Fox is the heart of it. (Not the Crobar! Don't make us have to all fit in there!) And everyone knows and loves the staff; the Fox is our extended family. I am sure many will agree - I can go to the Fox on a weekend night alone and guarantee to meet up with friends without pre-arranging it. There are few places in Central London that offer this kind of homely association.

		But aside from this the Fox is the music based character of Tottenham Court Road. It's referenced in We Will Rock You it's as much part of the lifeblood of the scene as Denmark Street is you want to make the area more music-centric, so don't build houses you've built enough apartment buildings there! This is an objection to planning application listed above.

Once again, the Council looks to redevelop metal/ alternative/ rock venues for housing and 'city type' establishments. Meanwhile, the places that do cause trouble remain open.

This pub has already been forced out of it' original home and now gets threatened again.

This application will destroy one of the best bars in the city, please stop turning this city into a ghetto of crass commercialism. There's no more 'retail and restaurant' needed in the West End, is there? This should be about NEED, not GREED. There IS a NEED the Intrepid Fox, which is a world-renowned alternative music venue.
		'Residential' use: (meaning for rich people, therefore an alienating force). NO wider benefit. 'Affordable housing' is usually a scam to get planning permission, so I reject the obvious argument that this is about helping those in need. There's so much other land-space that could be used, like around Kings Cross and Holborn, instead of a desert of industrial and station buildings, perhaps? Or, in the spirit of need-not-greed: why can't all the houses be 'affordable', in lieu of council houses which aren't being built? Isn't Centre Point supposed to be the name of a charity dedicated to fighting homelessness?
4373419 13-MAR-13 4369648 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Any time I walk the area in question, I suffer because of the lack of natural daylight due to the hi-rise office buildings that have been built next door. They offer NOTHING to anyone, nothing of inherent value, in my opinion. Why encourage abuse of the Intrepid Fox site, when you could have encouraged accommodation into the former site? Then noise complaints will abound, mind-you and the venues were there first! More housing is needed, but not at the expense of another superb venue when so many are already closing down.

4370821 12-MAR-13	COMMNT
4370836 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I am writing to object to plans to turn the local Bar, the Intrepid Fox in to housing. Although the area dose need housing, choice community night spots that cater for live music are important too. They often give the area it's character and are the reason why people want to move to an area. London is a diverse city and too many of it's best venues have been forced to close since the ban on smoking came in due to the change in social habits. It would be really sad to lose another.
		One of the last places of its kind. The quick and bland remake of london's gathering points threatens the collective imagination and creative en devours. The proposed planning permission is 2 a penny in this city and i feel we should all take pride in such places as the intrepid fox which people the world round come to London for.
4371249 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I know that this building has been a great attraction for both tourists as well as Londoners alike. Would be appalled to see such a well known landmark w
4371251 12-MAR-13	OBJ	London be demolished.
		The Intrepid Fox is an very popular venue in London for artists I work with, and one of the last truly independent venues (as opposed to pubs that do 'a bit of music', or chains in Camden).
		Camden was a hub for culture, but now, following some misfortune (fires and the like) and deliberate action by planners, it is losing this status and purely becoming a 'party town', and as a result, the tourist trade will suffer. I used to be in Camden 3 nights a week; as a result of the recent changes I rarely visit any more, and have moved the artists I represent to South London, where a fantastic scene is growing out of Camden's decline in this respect.
4369617 12-MAR-13	OBJ	By all means, I understand housing is important, but at the cost of one of the capital's landmark, iconic places, I think its worth putting to one side. The Intrepid Fox is a place for like-minded people to gather and talk over a drink. Do we really need to replace it with more apartments for people who have no grasp on the realities of money? Taking away one of the last privileges of the working class, only to brandish the ugly face of capitalism? No. This is why I object. I'm fed up of fancy developments, coffee shops and everything else taking away businesses run independently, by people who are genuinely passionate about what they do, not just the pound signs. Yours,

		As a patron of the premises of the Intrepid Fox and having seen the devastation to local and larger businesses by the planning works that have been going on, I am no longer willing to stand back and say nothing.
4374472 13-MAR-13	OBJ	If the local council wants people to keep coming to Soho, London, etcthey need to keep the places there that have helped put social aspects of it on the map.
4374473 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Important to keep live music venues going for local business, bands and punters.
		The Fox is not just a bar, it is a meeting place and a safe haven for many. For some, it is their first introduction to the metal scene in London. Not only that, it is famous thoughout the world. The fact its already had to move once is bad enough.
		Given the destruction the London Rock and Metal scene has had in the years since The Astoria, Metro and half of Charling Cross Road (a project in which there was a thought to rebuild a music venue to replace The Astoria. And yet, we are still left with a building site) was shut down, it would be a crying shame to destroy such an iconic landmark. Forcing business into other parts of the city would change the make up of central london for the worse. You may belive this is just a bar, but it is so much more than that. It is a meeting point. A place to share a love of music.
4369652 12-MAR-13	OBJ	In essence, dont destroy yet another part of London's long and iconic Rock and Metal scene.

There is now a limited choice of places for alternative people music to go and socialize, as a lot of Londons alternative venues have been closed down in the last few years. And now one of the main bars in the heart of London is theatened? This will effect a substantial amount of people, as the pub is always very busy. 4370002 12-MAR-13	OBJ	This has been a long standing venue for alternative music. Where do you think these patrons are going to go? Stop ruining someone else's long time tradition.
4370003 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I object to the closing of the Intrepid Fox on the grounds that it offers a safe haven for the local alternative sub-culture of the area and a warm atmosphere of acceptance.
		The Intrepid Fox has been a favorite bar of mine since hitting London. It has offered the big smoke something different for locals and tourist for years, its has a quirky style and different interest to offer, then your average bars when visiting London, not only that its one of the most friendliest bars across UK.
		Its always fun and exciting to go there and show other friends from all over the world and is also a safe place to take them to as unlike other bars in London this one actually feels friendly, no matter what you look like.
		I don't know why you'd want to ruin such a unique landmark in London, its taking away the nitty gritty which we Londoners and Tourist Love.
		Shame on you, I sincerely hope this doesn't go ahead and you leave The Intrepid Fox as it should be.

4370353 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox pub is a landmark in London and extremely popular, it would greatly detract from the interest in the area by removing that. 4370361 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	The Intrepid Fox is a great bar where I regularly meet my friends, watch bands and have a good time. I would be devastated would it be forced to close. Why demolish a popular pub when there are likely to be many other places more appropriate for development?
4369247 12-MAR-13	OBJ	This is somewhere that people instantly head to, regardless whether they're local or not. The intrepid fox is very successful and unique pub that needs to be saved from development and you stupid developers that think that is possible should think again.
4369952 12-MAR-13	OBJ	It needs to be saved it has been opened for 222 years and brings people together. I 100% OPPOSE all plans to demolish it. I've never been up the fox myself as i'm not from London but I know people and bands who go there regularly and to see another popular music venue go
4369955 12-MAR-13	OBJ	when the industry is very tight in this day and age for more houses is a joke I wish to object to the proposed demolition of the Intrepid Fox. We have seen far too many important entertainment venues being sold off for housing projects that are never completed.

4373811 13-MAR-13	OBJ	There are enough residential areas in this city already. What we are lacking is culture. The Intrepid Fox is a gathering place for a group of people who have already had numerous venues taken away from them. I refer to the Mean Fiddler, which has fallen prey to the redevelopment of the Tottenham Court Road station area already and the Devonshire Arms in Camden Town, which was taken over by a chain and made into something that to the outsider's eye might still look like the same thing but is in fact very different. Venues like the Intrepid Fox in the centre are what make this city stand out and should be protected for that very reason.
4373814 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Don't you dare closing The Intrepid Fox! Keep the music scene alive! We have enough with the shitty Xfactor and similar crap! Stay real! thanks I have been going to the Fox for many, many years and have introduced countless friends from London and the UK to what is not only a wonderful place to catch up and have a beer, but is also considered an international attraction to a lot of alternative tourists. Having being moved to this location following a similar thing happening 7 years ago, the Fox reestablished itself and has made an even bigger name for itself with sell out nights, particularly on the weekends.
4373817 13-MAR-13	COMMNT	The Fox is a venue of sentimental value for a lot of individuals and relocating again would almost certainly stand a diminished chance, therefore I oppose this planning application.

Would be a travesty within the uk music scene. DO NOT TOUCH THE INTREPID FOX!!!!!!!!!!! p
		This is a terrible idea, London cannot afford to lose yet another great venue for the purposes of redevelopments like this. Already venues such as the Astoria on tottenham court road have closed. London needs more individual places such as the Fox to show the real character of London rather than more generic coffee shops or restaurants. It would be a great loss to the London music scene if the Fox were to be closed down.

4370010 12-MAR-13 4370011 12-MAR-13 4370012 12-MAR-13	COMMNT OBJ OBJ	I disagree completely with the planning permission to close the Intrepid Fox and open yet more expensive residencies (here called 'affordable housing provision') thus getting rid of a space where many spend time after work and on weekends enjoying concerts, gigs, and few drinks with friends. The developments will just get rid of yet another place that suports social integration and musical inspiration. Retail, restaurants and residencies are plentiful in the area. Yet another block of more of the same makes no useful improvement to the area, and minimises diversity. Keep the Snooty Fox as a live music venue The Iconic bar in place just now cannot be lost.
4370366 12-MAR-13	ОВЈ	This is the best pub I have ever visited in London. The staff, the atmosphere and everything combine to make this a local away from home. I travel to London on business frequently and always make sure I have time to visit. To demolish it would be pathetic.

GB as a whole is losing to many buildings such as this. It has to stop now. The Intrepid Fox has stood for many years and seen many famous people come through those doors. The building should be given 'Cultural Heritage 'status, not demolition. I may not live in London but visit many times a year to meet up with friends and seek out good music and visit the Fox when I'm there. Businesses need space too - how about affordable business space for small businesses? No need to change the purpose then The Intrepid fox should be a London Landmark to do with the Heritage of British rock. So many places like this are going. We cant afford to lose another place. It's still frequented by a large number of patrons, and I'd like to raise my objections to this planning application for change of use. As a famous Soho landmark, the Fox is one of the last independent and alternative live music venues in the city centre area, and the diversity and culture it brings to the area will be greatly missed if the application should proceed. 4370536 12-MAR-13	OBJ	OBJECTION
		Sir/Madam,
		I wish it to be known that I as well as many others, as regular patrons of The Intrepid Fox bar, are firmly opposed to the planned development. This bar has long provided an invaluable social meeting point for alternative communities (of which there are few in comparison to those of the mainstream) and has thus maintained the Camden precient's famed reputation for diversity and open-mindedness. The closure of such an institution would therefore be an unfair, unecessary move, and would contradict and damage the said reputation.

4370202 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is a major cultural centre and should be protected at all costs. I strongly oppose any plans that would remove this wonderful venue. You cannot allow to have this iconic landmark of the London music industry closed. Its an international meeting point of minded likepeople. London lost already the Astoria, and the Mean Fiddler. 4371312 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I would like to register my objection to the closing of The Intrepid Fox in order to 're-develop' the building and convert into housing. As a famous Soho landmark, the Fox is one of the last independent and alternative live music venues in the city centre area, and the diversity and culture it brings to the area will be greatly missed if the application should proceed. In a time when more and more popular independent venues (The Astoria, The Gaff, etc) are clos the few remaining that attract so many to London as a destination should be protected rather than destroyed to make way for yet more retail and housing projects.

It was uprooted only a few years ago to it's current location, so to threaten it's security again is a little unfair. Despite the move it remains a one of a kind establishment that caters to a wide variety of people interested in alternative music and is exactly the type of venue that makes London such a vibrant, interesting place. Please don't dilute London. It's a well-used pub and a haven for those who enjoy alternative music without being segregated to areas such as Camden High Street. The Intrepid Fox is an important pub for the alternative music community. Having been a patron as a Londoner and having specifically visited this pub from the Midlands is testament to the popularity and importance of this pub.
4371531 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Any housing in this location will be FAR FROM AFFORDABLE in any reasonable sense of the word. Getting rid of the Intrepid Fox on these grounds therefore appears highly dubious. I strongly object to this proposal! Redevelopment of the site is not required. The closure of the Interpid Fox would be a severe blow to it's patrons and a great loss to the area. 4371949 13-MAR-13 4371970 13-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	It's absolutely apalling that the Intrepid Fox faces being demolished and turned into flats - its original venue suffered the same fate less than ten years ago. The Fox is a part of the musical heritage of London, and if these plans go ahead it means yet another independent business which gives Soho its charac is lost to yet more soulless, faceless chain businesses and fancy apartments. All this is aside from the fact that the manager and director of over 20 years is once again facing homelessness and the loss of his business. I hope against hope that these plans are not allowed to proceed. I'd like the Intrepid fox to remain the same Dear Camden Council,
		It's highly questionable that this planning application was brought forward as a good idea. This public house offers a service to a specific community in Greater London and the surrounding areas. The Intrepid Fox is known internationally as a meeting point for the alternative and rock community. The council have already gotten rid of the Astoria, The Metro, Sin and The Ghetto and are not being adequately replaced by businesses or venues of the same ilk. The loss of this business will mean a loss of a place where people of the community can congregate, and further losses to businesses like mine who relies up small bands playing these venues.
		Not only that, redevelopment under the guise of affordable housing at a Central London begs me to ask how affordable this housing is compared to average London Wages. If this is for the improvement of the area, the council should respond by providing evidence of the benefits in contrast to keeping the Intrepid Fox as is.

		The fox is a massive staple for the community. There are so few places in London where one can go to drink and enjoy hanging out in a classic rock pub, and the fox has always been my preference for sure because of the huge amount of space it boasts and also because of its over the top style, capturing the imagination and what metal/rock is about (and not taking it too seriously some the other pubs which come to mind, which attract the most negative crowdst). By closing the fox down you are killing a huge part of the music and rock/metal community, particularly as it is located at the top of Denmark St which is "famous" for it's music shops, and opposite a popular rehearsal studio.

		The Fox is home to people who belong to alternative subcultures. These are people who listen to "scary" music and wear "odd" clothes, mostly musicians and artists. Increasingly, places which welcome these people are shutting their doors, which is a shame because they are also the most friendly and kindhearted people I have met. We aren't talking about "just another London pub"; The Fox serves a much more specific and important function in the community. If you are shaking your head, consider this: at the very least it keeps all the bloody weirdos out of your local.

		This sort of drinking establishment must be kept open as it is one of the last few places with character, that is different from the generic pubs and bars around central london. Having already moved from Soho itself, the current location has brought itself much more exposure and even more fanfare. 		I object to the redevelopment of The Intrepid Fox. The site provides a perfect social gathering for alternative people of London and attracts tourists of the same nature. The Intrepid fox not only invites visitors to its bar but also to explore the surrounding areas of Tottenham court road such as Denmark street,

		I'm extremely saddened and shocked by this recent news about the possibility of the Intrepid Fox being demolished. This is the best pub/bar in London now

		I've had plenty of great memories at this place with my friends. It holds a special place in my heart because of it's atmosphere and the great times I've had there and I've got to socialize with really nice similar people to myself, which I don't get much chance to do anywhere else in London nowadays. 		I am writing to object to your plans to demolish The Intrepid Fox. For me The Fox is becoming the most important venue for alternative music and culture in London and for the city that spawned such great talents as The Rolling Stones & Demoling the most important venue for alternative music and culture in London and for the city that spawned such great talents as The Rolling Stones & Demoling the properties of the Rolling Stones & Demoling the properties of the Rolling Stones with the Rolling Stones and the world and that dids in showing the brilliance of how diverse London really is should not be taken away now should it? I have lived in many places around the world and London always remained my favorite however in recent years I have seen a huge decline in venues for alternative music. The Astoria, a historical building and one where I have fond memories of seeing many great bands is now gone. The LAZ next to Astoria, another great band venue and great rock club—gone. The metro round the corner from both these, another fantastic place for smaller crowds and mid week Rock, Punk and Metal music - gone. The venue Sin next 4369977 12-MAR-13	OBJ	going, first classic music venues are destroyed and torn down and then bars where many enjoy a social time. These redevelopments are killing off an area that use to be a wonderful and creative one.

		There are not that many pubs in london who cater predominately for lovers of metal and rock music. This scene adds to the attraction and diversity of our capital. The Fox is located at the end of one of the most famous musically related streets in the world, and therefore is ideally placed. As with the musically historic Astoria, the gradual errosion of this cities musical landscape will aid in destroying the character and appeal of the best city in the world.
4369978 12-MAR-13 4369979 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Please reconsider This place means more to me than any other location in London. It has helped me threw thick and thin.
45099/9 12-WAK-15	ОВЈ	The Intrepid Fox This popular bar has been part of Soho's culture for years and years. It has already once been forced to move from its original location in Wardour St, to the property below Centre Point where it has once again become home to 100's of people, a regular visitors destination and a lively and well respected music venue.
4369980 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't allow this important part of Soho's vibrant culture to be destroyed as so much else has and is being This is the only place that still feel original in London. With music shops and original bars. Yes they may seem outdated and shabby but it has that feel that Brick Lane or Camden use to be before it got cleaned up and commercialized.
		Alternative seen is dying out and there are hardly any unique or original places to go out or see smaller rock bands play. Fox is an integral part of the seen and it is ideally located to pop over after work. I don't see why we should re locate to Cemden or any other further location to have a drink. London has enough fancy places and areas.
4371764 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Instead of putting away anything that is less flashy and catering for the upper class why not save the music street and the Fox and help it stay part of cer London tourist attraction and alternative seen home. 		It's a well known fact that to enjoy an alternative venue you must be 'in the spirit of Soho and be open-minded. However, it is fair to say that the Intrepid Fox is a pretty friendly place and the door policy isn't strict. Acceptance in any case is very forthcoming there. In fact, many tribes mingle over the two floors: goths and hard rock fans share breathing air with the metal added, genres becoming mixed as the night progresses. 4371862 12-MAR-13 4371903 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Big businesses and hawk-eyed developers have no understanding of or appreciation for the character and community that alternative venues like the Intrepid Fox bring to a city. Not everyone who visits London wants to see postcard tourist attractions or go to chain pubs or restaurants, they come here because this city is a hub of creative, open minded people who want less commercial places to socialize. Independent businesses and venues are rapidly disappearing in recent years under pressure from developers and it is making the city a greyer, less hopeful, less attractive place to live in or visit. It is in the council's interest to preserve any locations that are key to London's alternative culture and encourage any public activity or expression that makes the city more colorful or welcoming. People like to see heart and authenticity, not cold commerce. Save the Intrepid Fox. Objection
		I object to this plan as the venue that is meant to be destroyed and rebuilt is an important and integral part of the landscape in Tottenham, court road area, there are far few places as unique as the Intrepid Fox in the city of London and the replace such a venue would be a great loss to the city and area it is in.
4371904 12-MAR-13	OBJ	There will be no life left in London if such places are continually taken away from us for housing. This is a very popular venue and one that many of the alternative genres appreciate. Unlike alot of public houses, alternative fans do not generally smash places up or put themselves in hospital through their own stupidity. Many are well educated and just want to have a release somewhere they enjoy. This is what stops them acting like the more mainstream people who are a damage unto themselves. 		I am completely against the redevelopment of the Intrepid Fox site. This building serves an important cultural purpse to London by supporting the alternative music scene. The bar is world renowned among the world of heavy metal and rock music and acts as an important tourist attraction for visiting fans of such music.
		Given the venues close proximity to other venues such as The Crowbar and 12 bar club, it plays an integral role in the formation of an 'alternative 'neighbourhood'. An area where musicians and artists, young, fun loving people come together to watch live music and to socialise. This could be considered similar to New York City's lower east side, Berlin's Kreuzberg, Toronto's Queen street w to name but a few.
4372291 13-MAR-13	ОВЈ	London is famous for some of the greatest alternative music groups of all time, The Rolling Stones, Iron Maiden, The Sex Pistols, The Clash. 		Coupled with it's location right near Denmark Street it is also an integral part of England's musical heritage and is a key meeting point for native musicians too.

The decimation to the London rock scene in Soho that was brought by Crossrail was enough for us to stomach. With the closure of Sin, the London Astoria and the LA2, along with other key shops, bars and restaurants in the area, there has been enough closures to last a lifetime.

How about you go and do up the ramshackle dwellings that already are houses, and make them livable. Rather then destroying entertainment venues that give some semblance of a life to the people. The country is already heading down a depressing path, I for one find it rather bleak that you're trying your best to suck all life out of well. Life. To many of these places have bit the dust already. It's time to make a stand and say no more. LEAVE THE FOX ALONE!!! Don't ruin the character of Soho by closing down an iconic pub! 4374447 13-MAR-13	OBJ	The intrepid fox should be heritage listed, not apartments.
4374456 13-MAR-13	COMMNT	I OBJECTION the Intrepid Fox is a brilliant pub and it would be a huge mistake to get rid of it.

Over the past 10 years or so, i have noticed a lot of pub closures due to council redevelopment plans, government laws (smoking ban) and loss of earnings because of the latter. As for the redevelopment issue; the Enfield Arms (a tudor building with a heritage listed fireplace) closed a long time ago amid plans to update the adjacent train station and add housing, yet the pub was knocked down and the plot has yet to be developed upon. I fear the same may happen to the 'Fox'.

The Intrepid Fox pub has been a main attraction for rock fans from all over the globe, for many years. It would be such a shame for London to lose yet more of it's culture (be it popular or not [to some!]) by replacing the iconical music bar with cheap housing for scum to thrive in.

4370375 12-MAR-13	OBJ	London is not the wonderfully diverse, cultural, exciting place that it once was. This would be another massive blow to the nail in London's coffin. Sir,
4370376 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Having lost the original site for this bar to crossrail it would be particularly unfair for it to be destroyed again in favour of bland shops and flats. It serves a great niche in the rock music community and would be sorely missed by people all around the south east. The Intrepid Fox is one of the few places left in London that feel like home to so many people, and makes everyone feel welcome no matter their 4370378 12-MAR-13	OBJ	To close the fox would be to deprive the community of a much needed hang out. Not everyone in central London wants to go to a champagne or cocktail bar, and the Fox is an important part of London's cultural heritage This area is surrounded by mostly offices, where people like me work and enjoy meeting with friends in the evenings after a stressful day.

4370380 12-MAR-13	OBJ	We're running out of cool places to go to and this, The Intrepid Fox is a great and unique place. Friends from abroad and other parts of England have loved it when I've taken them there. I work around the corner from The Intrepid Fox at a company called Prime Focus Film. We are more than 200 employees there and in the last year, the Intrepid Fox is the place where we relax after work and even during weekends. It is a unique stablisment, a landmark in the musical scene in London. There is no place like it in the whole London and it is an attraction visited by people from all over the world. Places like The Intrepid Fox make London what it is, make London different and unique and not the endless parade of concrete buildings that newer cities are. 		I raise objection to the planning decisions to alter the Intrepid Fox, I implore you to re-think the 'redevelopment' of the site. As not only does this represent one of the few public houses in that location to supply demand for a specific music scene. This is one of the many reasons I travel into this particular area and as I know a great number of friends and like minded people that also would no longer feel the need to spend time in Central London, if it wasn't for the Intrepid Fox. It is an important factor in the recent history of this area, and an important creative and cultural focal point. Not only from a creative and cultural perspective, but also from a sociological, anthropological and financial perspective, this area needs the Intrepid Fox, and will do well into the future. 		I think this should not be granted and am vehemently against it going ahead. London has lost so much of it's alternative history and heritage and Crossrail has already destroyed so many cultural venues. The Intrepid Fox is a home away from home for the metal and alternative community in London (and 4371330 12-MAR-13	OBJ	further afield). For the Fox to go would remove any place for locals of London to enjoy rather than another faceless and soul less development.
4371352 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Interpid Fox has a unique place in London's musical and cultural history. Please don't allow it to becem yet another faceless office block. The Intrepid Fox is an enormously important bar in which can be found tourists from all over the world. It serves a niche - remember that not all visitors to London want to see Buckingham Palace and so on. Central London is not, nor should it be, a centre for housing development, this is counter-intuitive in many ways.
		However, considering the past the Intrepid Fox (and other similar institutions) has had with planning authorities, it would seem that the nature of the place itself is the reason for these proposals, in that it is a favourite of many in the alternative music scene. This scene has lost the Astoria, and bars and clubs nearby to where the Intrepid Fox stands today. The reason for these earlier demolitions was to improve transport links, which is at least understandable. The pretext of creating " affordable housing" in London's entertainment district is ludicrous and deceitful. People in this scene pay taxes and 4370406 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	The Intrepid Fox is one of the last great bastions of alternative music in central London. Taking away this place would be detrimental to 1,000s of people who frequent this place which, alongside Crobar, has become a mecca for people of all generations worldwide.

4370414 12-MAR-13	OBJ	My friends and I (former Londoner, still frequent visitor) have been going to the Intrepid Fox since 2008. It's a decent and friendly pub that plays a great range of rock, metal and alternative music, and an established night-spot for many of London's rock and heavy metal scene - and many tourists who also enjoy that type of music. If it dissapeared, it's loss would definately be felt - why remove an interesting and established business?
4370417 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox brings a lot of character to the area as the home of the London Rock Music community, and it's loss will be strongly detrimental. I cannot see the projected plans offering anything more than faceless units, and strongly object to them. As the saying goesDO NOT FIX SOMETHING THAT IS NOT BROKEN Regards Justin Witt Do not destroy "more" of Londons music scene and culture Intrepid Fox is a unique venture and helps to provide London with its cosmopolitan culture. Do we need some more sterile housing in the centre? No. Demolishing the Intrepid Fox would be a really bad idea for the Borough of Camden as it brings together a good community of people, as well as visitors from all over the world, which in turn brings money in to the area. Whilst there are bars with similar themes, there are none that are of that size, that accept all people and are good places for the alternative community to go. Please reconsider this plan. This Pub is a major tourist attraction and caters for Londoners too.It is unique and must stand unmolested Please don't remove the Intrepid Fox, it is one of the only decent pubs left to go to in London. I always have a happy time in there and so do my friends and everybody else who goes in there (if I have not spoken to them I will class them as friends I have not met). Everybody is always so nice and in a happy and relaxed mood. Please don't spoil it and take this pleasure away from many. You will note from my address I am presently in Brighton, but I frequent the

4373802 13-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid fox venue is an alternative icon and as such I object to the development Hello,
		I am writing today to oppose the application to build more residential property in central London on the site of teh Intrepid Fox pub.
		I don't understand why the only building that can be used to create new housing projects are ones that are already in use. There are tonnes of derelict or disused buildings that could easily used instead of ripping down a building already in use.
		My second objection is that this is another step towards ripping the heart and sole out of London and replacing it with chain restaurants and ikea styled accommodation.
		That area has already had the iconic Astoria torn down so that they can extend the tube station. Which i'm sure will be helpful with the cross rail but also seems like an excuse to set up ANOTHER starbucks, costa and M'n'S metro.
		The Intrepid Fox isn't just a pub, its a tourist attraction for anyone that is into heavy alternative music. Go in on any night of the week and you will hear accents form all over the world.

4375067 14-MAR-13 4369263 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Don't close the Intrepid Fox pub. It's an important music venue. The Intrepid Fox supports a demographic that would keenly feel its loss.

4370236 12-MAR-13	OBJ	One of the reasons I moved away from London is because of the destruction of any kind of alternative culture by city officials, including the demolishing of the Astoria without any attempt to replace it with a similar size venue. " Affordable" housing in the very centre of the London shopping and partying district seems utterly ridiculous and surely this space is better occupied by a popular and affordable bar that actually offers colour and variety to the local entertainment scene.
4370240 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	That is one of the only independant and alternatives pubs in london left. It s is strongly needed for our community The Intrepid Fox holds many dear memories for me, also it is an landmark in Camden to which many people visit and associate with the area. It would be

This development would leave us with only one other place to go in central London and that caters predominantly for the rock fan and not the metal music fan and is much smaller that The Intrepid Fox. The intrepid fox is a landmark for many londoners and travelers. I deeply oppose this proposal.
4370441 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I visit the Intrepid Fox public bar every time I'm in London! Please dont get rid of alternative music venue's. Its all we have! There's always too many pop music venue's around.
4369924 12-MAR-13 4369925 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	The intrepid fox is not just a pub, it is a place for cultural activities and art forms for a minority of the community. There are every day fewer places for the alternative community in London, and we feel we have no room in the community that keeps shutting down the few places where we are able to express our interests, culture, and artistic development. This pub is a piece of history, with renowned artists performing there for years. A piece of culture of London and UK, that should not succumb again to government plans which take no account of the minorities. Such fate in the same area was experienced by the venue Astoria, and Sin Club. They have not been replaced or relocated, just disappeared. This can not happen to the intrepid fox. Please take into account the minorities in the community and put an end to this discrimination I object to this
4369926 12-MAR-13 4369927 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	What with the cross rail and the large lego-kit buildings increasingly dominating the seven dials/ tottenham court road area, it's getting harder and harder to see the original character of the place. The area is one of the most important in the history of rock, and it would be a crying shame to replace one of the few remaining genuine rock and roll bars in central london with yet another series of tasteless glass boxes that will only serve to remind future generations that the early part of the 21st century was dominated by utterly impersonal buildings designed to look impressive from above. Central London has plenty of shiny apartments for people in suits, and hardly any charismatic bars for people in leather. This a landmark rock pub that people from all over Europe visit, allowing housing to be built over this serves purpose to the public! We've lost too many music venues from this part of town in recent years. The Fox itself has already been moved once! While I know affordable housing is a massive concern for London, I feel there are other properties which would provide better for this. Also, the location - while amazing for transport links - isn't the first place I'd want to live.
4370848 12-MAR-13 4370853 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Would tenants stuff the same problems as those living in surrounding streets like Oxford St? Please save a valued music venue, which brings in lots of late night revenue for the local food vendors, and look at alternative locations. There are very few pubs in London that cater to this genre of music. I strongly object. The intrepid fox is one of the very few bars/pubs that I actually enjoy visiting amongst the otherwise largely pretentious collection of bars and pubs that London has to offer. Having previously been forced from its original home, to do so again would be nothing short of culturally sacrilegious.

4371869 12-MAR-13 4371870 12-MAR-13 4371875 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ COMMNT	Please do not close down the Intrepid Fox pub in Tottenham court road as it is a hugely popular pub which generates a lot of business. It has a great reputation and is a very unique place. It would be a huge and unnecessary waste of time and money to shut this great pub. Please listen to the public! This place is a piece of history, please don't shut it down to build more housings. Would prefer to keep the Intrepid Fox!
4371879 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is a lively, friendly and popular venue, a great advert for the social side of London AND the rich rock musical heritage of the UK. Also, considering it's excellent location, the housing that would be built there would be anything but affordable and completely strip the Tottenham Court Road area of yet another decent venue.
		Can't count the number of awesome nights I've spent in the Fox, no way you should knock the place down. Where else am I gonna go to have a beer and listen to some decent music that isn't a cramped little matchbox?
		I can't adequately put how strongly I object to this proposal into words. Mainly because that would involve a lot of swearing, which would be counterproductive. So I will instead say, nay, beg you to PLEASE not do this.
4371889 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is a great place, let it live on.
4376201 17-MAR-13	OBJ	I would like to raise an objection to this proposal, because I believe it affects the Intrepid Fox bar. This is a unique bar in London and I would be very sad to see it go. I visit the establishment frequently and do not believe the development will be an enhancement to the area or it's unique character. I object to the closure of the Intrepid Fox. It has significant cultural importance and a place in modern British culture, by virtue of its role in the British music
4376203 17-MAR-13	OBJ	scene.
4369747 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I am absolutely dismayed at the news that The Intrepid Fox, which a legendary London rock venue and one of the very few remaining in my city, could be getting destroyed in favour of building new homes. Surely this can be done elsewhere?! I have enjoyed many nights in The Intrepid Fox for many years and yet so many iconic London venues (such as The Hammersmith Palais and Astoria) are being ripped apart. This cannot happen.
4369753 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I object to the plan as business is what is needed in London to create more jobs/revenue not housing. There area number of empty housing projects already around London, because they are not being utilised properly as " affordable" housing.
4369754 12-MAR-13 4369756 12-MAR-13 4369758 12-MAR-13	COMMNT OBJ OBJ	We do not need any more housing or coffee shops in central London. We are in the middle of a recession and high street shops are closing on a weekly basis. Instead leave the one pub that actually makes money because its one of VERY FEW alternative places to go in central London. The Intrepid Fox is an icon. It's one of the few places in London that has a unique identity. Please don't change it. Oposse.
		The Intrepid fox is a social gathering place for London' dying rock scene with Camden Town slowly being taken over by popular music this venue is one of the few places that sticks to its guns and provides a welcoming rock and metal atmosphere to those who love it most. it would be a great loss to London to lose yet another amazing Rock and Metal venue to the likes of developers or popular culture, it would be like knocking down the globe theatre and building
4369759 12-MAR-13 4369761 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	a cinema because people prefer to watch movies then go to the theatre A stop must be put to these development plans!
4369764 12-MAR-13 4370442 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is a truly great rock scene location and to take that away would be like taking away Camden Market. interpid fox is one of the greatest bars in London.

4370443 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Save the Intrepid Fox! Any attempt to convert this area to "affordable housing" has to be realistic in its outlook. The site is situated in the middle of London's west end. The area is rich in high end Department stores, one of a kind retail outlets and with the afore mentioned Crossrail link situated less than 100 yards away as well as links to the Northern and Central line underground train lines from the site, all residential properties in this area will instantly become premium apartments, effectively pricing first time buyers and those in rented accommodation out of the market. There is no way this project can provide " flordable" housing.
		As a big fan of the intrepid fox it was my shock to hear it might be going. A great pub playing the kind of music that cannot be found elsewhere.
		With the tragic destruction of the London Astoria nightclub some time ago the intrepid fox represents one of the only venues left in the area for quality alternative and rock music. Removing it would be a grand tragedy.
4370444 12-MAR-13 4370445 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't destroy anymore of inner london history and culture. Please don't close this area down as it includes lots of venues including the Intrepid Fox which is one of the last few permanent locations for the alternative scene in London. People who do adapt this lifestyle have been struggling to find places that help others socialise with them and closing down an iconic venue like this will only make things worse.
4370447 12-MAR-13 4370448 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	No! Objection
4370449 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is a great bar/venue with a good sized clientele.
4369928 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is the greatest pub in London. It gets a lot of revenue daily, is a very popular place to visit. It's somewhere where people of a minority can gather in their numerous amounts and chat to one another. If it wasn't for that pub, I wouldn't know the people I do now, wouldn't have the enriched life I had. It's the one place in London I will go to and feel comfortable no matter what the situation. Don't tear down a piece of something so special for the sake of something that will never have as much heart, or meaning as this pub does to its patrons.
		To close the Intrepid Fox would be a disasterous move for London. Not only would you be destroying a focal point of alternative nightlife for Londoners but you would also be taking away a fantastic sight from tourists visiting.
		The Intrepid Fox always has great business, a safe environment and is one of few venues left in Central London with space within it.
		Please do not allow this planning application to go ahead as it will be a massive blow to one of London's oldest cultures and already oppressed populations.

It is one of the best alternative places where alternative people can go to, because there is not a lot of places like this in London. Altogether about 4? So if you want to take it away from us, that is just really not fair towards those 4372035 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Surely there is an alternative site for these dwellings to be built?

		The Intrepid Fox is a popular bar that provides a sense of community within an alternative culture. There are few places that provide such a sense of 4371733 12-MAR-13 4371734 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	I strongly object to this bar (The Intrepid Fox) being turned into housing. Licensed premises are closing at an unprecedented rate all over this country and there is no reason to close yet another one to turn it into housing, especially one which is as popular and well used amongst Londoners and visitors & Description of the Intrepid Fox has fought hard to rebuild the customer basis and should not have do so once more. Already The Astoria has been removed, which was very popular and the area should not loose yet another popular venue, not to ment that the closure would mean yet more jobs lost in a time where they are already scarce. This pub is amazing and a great place for metalheads to socialise, and there isn't many places to do that left for us!

		The Intrepid Fox is famous nationally, and attracts a large crowd from all over the UK, encouraging social interaction, economic growth and tourism. This place is great for the already culturally significant area, and for the people of the alternative community. I am sure, as a former resident, that there are 4371735 12-MAR-13	OBJ	countless other sites where the appropriate housing could be built that do not require the destruction of a landmark. This bar CAN NOT!!!! Be closed down. It is truely unique and holds too many memories for people!! So many people go there and it's iconic to London. It's

4376197 17-MAR-13 4374486 13-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	The intrepid fox is an amazing venue there is no other place like it London. It has a whole community around. To remove it would hurt many people and I think its disgusting that such amazing focal place in the Metal industry in London is giving way to some residential blocks. Its not just the venue I resent, this is an area of London that represents the london music scene, with Denmark street just across the road and endless pubs and jazz clubs. If we allow one part of our music industry what is going to other company's doing the same to other venues killing off and very vibrant part our city all for the sake of business. Certain parts of London are running dead as it, why kill it off even further. As someone who is proud of London I resent what certain business are doing to the lively life of our beautiful city. Where will all the people go out to if you build on all the pubs and clubs in the west end what are you playing at???? The news stories are telling us that businesses are failing and here is a thriving wee pub (and a brilliant one at that) and you want to knock it down??
		Or does having a valid opinion worth taking on board constitute having a fortune to spend on a crap modern build house??? Hundreds walk through those doors every week from all over the world, it's a central hub for visiting bands and is well loved by locals and visitors alike. was knocking down the astoria not enough?

Don't destroy the intrepid fox! I object to this wholeheartedly. There is no need for retail and restaurants! Don't close the intrepid fox!!!!
		The Intrepid Fox is a world renowned historic pub, and has deep roots in the alternative music scene in London, making it a destination of choice of many thousands of rocker and metalhead visitors into London per year. Allowing this planning permission to go ahead would be detrimental to not only the people of this great city, but the visitors from surrounding areas, both close and far afield. With many establishments closing weekly due to lack of funds, to close an undeniably popular pub like the Fox would be a spit in the face of the people who have worked there tirelessly thoughout the years, as well as the local, national and international visitors/regulars that the Fox welcomes.
4374506 14-MAR-13	OBJ	Please do not go ahead with granting this planning permission. some places are iconic and just shouldn't be touched. Live music places are one of these places Yep, surely people need housing but maybe if the 4369807 12-MAR-13	OBJ	people who need housing had the opportunity to hear more music, their lives wouldn't be so miserable. Maybe do up 'the fox' and make it more accessible for everyone!!

OBJECTION!

It is a great public house!

Its been opened for 222 YEARS!

That surely says something!

That would literally be like demolishing a castle that's been around for 300 years, to build flats on it.

How can that make any sense at all!

This is a vital peace of history. It has stood the tests of time! It would be ripping away a part of England's history! How is that fair?

Famous celebrities of metal, Rock n Roll, Goth and Punk have Hung out in there! Some with us still and some sadly are not with us.

A LOT of my Friends have spent time in that pub, They could have CHOSE to go elsewhere, but something drew them to go into The Intrepid Fox. This is the comments they have said and told me to write down.

'Well they've had a number of great bands there, The atmosphere is always fun and friendly and we've always had a great time. The bar staff are always friendly and attentive and it's always busy'

'The the way it's decorated is amazing and your eyes are immediately drawn to it, It has an inviting space'

Dear Sir or Madame,

I am highly against the plan of redeveloping the Centre Point and Intrepid Fox site. The Intrepid Fox has been a place of amusement and self-reflection for me since I moved to London in 2009. I have been spending 2-3 evenings every week since my relocation to London. I am not the only case. Every week I see the same faces and listen to my favorite music genre. It would be a shame if the Intrepid Fox had to close.

Regards,

Laura Grzeszczak

		" Affordable Housing" to replace the Intrepid Fox - what a joke! As if any housing built here would be affordable unless you are the queen!
4374509 14-MAR-13	OBJ	London is fast becoming a boring place to go out. The Intrepid Fox attracts visitors and locals because of its uniqueness and individuality. Stop the sterilisation of London and its bars! This is a much loved, established and appreciated venue and music service site by its regular and occasional visitors and it will be a shame if it were to close.

4369457 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is one if the few remaining places for metal heads in London. To lose it would be a huge loss to metal heads as a community, and a large community they are. I've personally spent man a great hour there, and intend to do so in the future! I would like to complain and raise an OBJECTION against Demolishing The Intrepid Fox bar at

		The establishment at this address should not be demolished to make way for newer developments for a number of reasons, but more personally because it is felt by many as a true place of genre definition. The Intrepid Fox is known on a global scale to be a place of true "rock and roll pedigree", frequented by locals, nationals and internationals who specifically choose to journey and visit one of the last remaining icons of the Soho and Central London area for those of a more "alternative" lifestyle. I urge you to reconsider this application and not allow the demolition of a place loved by 4371344 12-MAR-13 4371345 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	so many. Do not close the intrepid fox! one of the only good metal bars around!

It should be listed, not destroyed. Been going to this pub for thirty odd years. To knock it down fir retail space would destroy the character of the area and represent another step towards 4371349 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	corporate monoculture. This proposal is, in short, unacceptable. The Intrepid Fox rock bar is one of the attractions for many people visiting London. We need more souless buildings like a hole in the head. Keep Londons

4371753 12-MAR-13 4371754 12-MAR-13 4371755 12-MAR-13	OBJ COMMNT OBJ	I object to this request. The Intrepid Fox is the last bastion of hard rock and heavy metal bars in central London. Already it has survived one move of premises due to redevelopment. Another would surely kill it altogether. Its current location at the end of Denmark Street helps to define the area as one celebrating London's rich musical heritage. The need and rampant desire to build, redevelop and commercialise must surely be tempered with a wish to preserve one of the last and most important meeting points for rock musicians and fans in Central London. You can't destroy culture, you've taken away so many great places not this one too Please don't agree this planning application. It's bad enough that everywhere else is/has been overhauled to make way for more housing
4374450 13-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Great bar, and much loved. There are hardly any bars like The Intrepid Fox in London anymore, it would be a huge shame to see it go.
4374451 13-MAR-13	OBJ	Please don't build on the Intrepid Fox - it is an important part of the Goth community! There is no need for more offices and residencies on the location of the Intrepid Fox pub. This pub serves a huge part of the community not welcome in other more 'normal' places. The essence of London is diversity and the West End needs places like the Intrepid Fox to keep it interesting. Don't ruin yet another alternative venue that not only serves the alternative and inspiring crowd at the Intrepid Fox but also attracts tourists from all over the world. This
4374452 13-MAR-13	OBJ	venue is world famous in music circles. Please do not grant this application from yet another commercial company set on making profit.
4374455 13-MAR-13 4374459 13-MAR-13	OBJ	My favourite bar in London. Build your housing in Wembley instead, that place needs renovating.
4374439 13-WAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox Pub should not be demolished.
		The Intrepid Fox venue/public house is one of the few remaining alternative drinking establishments in London/the UK. The marginalisation of this genre of music and the people into it means that this is in fact discrimination, with more and more venues shutting. Every time I have visited the Intrepid Fox, it has been packed to the rafters with a broad range of people all having an amazing time. Everyone is always so inclusive, which is very rare in other types of establishments - no one cares whether you have come straight from work in a suit, or are flamboyant and dressed for a crazy night out.
4374463 13-MAR-13	OBJ	PLEASE don't shut this place down! It's already had to move once before. Stop discriminating against alternative people and protect this fantastic establishment!!!
4371668 12-MAR-13	OBJ	This will be the second time this historic and cultural music venue will have pressure put on it to be moved. Affordable housing in this part of London? Don't be fooled, look somewhere else. People from all around the world come and visit this bar when in London. Would be a great loss with very little gained.
4371670 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is one of the last of its kind in London, adding the flair of a music and cultural scene to an otherwise more and more sterile generic concrete block in Central London. It'd be a shame if it were to be torn down, especially within a borough known for its diverse culture like Camden.
4371671 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is an important part of London's culture. It's essential that it's allowed to stay open. As a fairly frequent use of this drinking establishment, that as far as i know has never had any trouble with rowdy revelers, or high levels of drink related crime associated with it, I can see why this should be shut down, when I dare say there are other pubs within the Borough of Camden with & Quot; seedier" reputations that are allowed to stay open.
4371672 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Intrepid Fox should stay!
4371673 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I object to this proposal, The Intrepid Fox is one of the best rock pubs in London and it would be a travesty to turn it into housing.
4371674 12-MAR-13	OBJ	no The Intrepid Fox is is a meeting place for a greatly eclectic mix of people from all walks of life and also from many different countries. It brings a diverse cross section of people together in a very friendly atmosphere. It would be a terrible loss to the area to replace this characterful pub with yet another grey
4371675 12-MAR-13	OBJ	towerblock

Affordable housing provision? Really? In Central London!!!! This is a ludicrous proposal. There are hundreds of restaurants and retail outlets within sneezing distance of Centre Point. A general spruce up would be fabulous, as would an extension on to the Intrepid Fox II but not a full-on redevelopment of that whole site (Centre Point House - Intrepid Fox area).

If anything, Intrepid Fox has already been lost from the map once before. The original public house was steeped in history of well over 100 years old, an unbelievable heritage, beautifully stunning architecture and an absolute wealth of history within and you should be ashamed of yourselves for letting it go to the wolves.

Thankfully the Intrepid Fox found the site right by Centre Point to set up again, but it is not the same as it lacks character and lets face it, is too small, but love it.

Let's not stamp out the thriving alternative scene and make the centre of London so clinically insigid!

London is all about vigor, culture, sub-culture, music, fashion, art, theatre, The up on this site is a community hub. Save the Intrepid Fox!! Do not shut down intrepid fox!
4370736 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	The Intrepid Fox is pub long standing social gathering place for sub culture namely Goths and Metal in an area where there is little for them to go.
4370748 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Interpid Fox has been a longstanding culturally rich institution in London and its use should be preserved as a similar establishment adding to the rich folklore of Oxford Street and the surrounding area. This is not an appropriate area for a housing development - and will simply erode this particular area of the LB Camden. I am a former Resident, now living elsewhere but keen to see the Intrepid Fox, or a new incarnation of a similar institution on this site.
4370769 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	I believe another set of faceless and expensive flats is not a worthy adage to the Inner city landscape, the intrepid fox is both a unique cultural hub and another aspect of London's fascinating music scene. In terms of tourism a block of apartments will not match the wonderful night outs the intrepid fox offers and safe and friendly atmosphere at the bar. Save Interesting London and do not succumb to beland cityscape. Is there not enough office spaces and apartments in london and useless coffee shops are in there thousands DO NOT take away one of the only places left with personality that attracts people, tourist from allover the world when visiting London I love this place
4370776 12-MAR-13	OBJ	We are always losing music venues/decent pubs - Intrepid Fox is a landmark, a tourist attraction as well as an amazing place to meet. Central London
4370777 12-MAR-13	OBJ	already has enough sandwich shops/cafes, etc and there are plenty of other ways of incorporating 'affordable' housing. And I seriously doubt any housing built in that particular area will actually be 'affordable'!! The Intrepid Fox is a renowned venue that is visited by rock and metal fans from all over the country. It is one of the few places in London that caters for this taste in small venue live and DJ music and would be sadly missed if demolished. Please don't take away a popular venue for a genre of music, style and character that is sadly under represented. The demise of the Intrepid Fox would be a sad loss and attraction for London's night life especially where
4371350 12-MAR-13	OBJ	being replaced by unaffordable housing in an already built up area.
4371351 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I think its a shame that London wants to take away all its amazing, unique places and make the whole city look the sameshame on you!
		The Intrepid Fox has been a favorite bar of mine since hitting London. It offers the big smoke something different for locals and tourist. It shas a quirky style and give people of different interest the chance to go somewhere different, than your average bars when visiting London, not only that its one of the most friendliest bars across UK.
		Its always fun and exciting to go there and show other friends from all over the world and is also a safe place to take them to as unlike other bars in London this one actually feels friendly, no matter what you look like.
		I don't know why you'd want to ruin such a unique landmark in London, its taking away the nitty gritty which we Londoners and Tourist Love.
		I sincerely hope this doesn't go ahead and you leave The Intrepid Fox as it should be.
4371353 12-MAR-13 4371355 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	Kindest Regards I object to this application. No objection to the re-development of the unused buildings in the area and it would be great to ensure the buildings in the area are used better, but the intrepid fox is a London icon and a busy, highly sucessful pub that actively brings business and people to the area. It just doesn't make sense to buildoze it. Apart from this, the area is not very appropriate for housing, let alone affordable housing, which i assume would be for families - a) how could it possibly be 'affordable' in that area of town in amongst all the new office blocks and west end shops, there is minimal other residential property, especially family accommodation in the area, surely for a reason - it's been priced out, b) it's not a practical area for family life with the high noise and disruption levels of traffic and people coming and going at all times of day and night. Any housing built here would surely be quickly sublet at a profit to business people, tourists or young single people, and there is hardly a need for more of this type of housing as it seems to be available all over the borough. I do agree that more
4371756 12-MAR-13 4371757 12-MAR-13	OBJ OBJ	affordable housing is very much needed for families and those in need of support, but i do not believe this would be a sucessful way to do it. There are of None
4371758 12-MAR-13	OBJ	Music fans worldwide travel to London to support the local economy by visiting iconic rock music bars, clubs and venues, half of which have already closed down due to "development". In the interest of not turning London into a collection of over-expensive glass facades displaying sterile corporate hospitality and upmarket developments and instead keeping London as a living breathing entity, I'm signing an OBJECTION. Additionally, creating "affordable" housing by Tottenham Court Road does not seem a realistic prospect, sorry to say. London is not a great city because of expensive planning developments, it is a great city because of its culture, art and history. Point made.
		Please do no allow The Intrepid Fox to close. It is a fundamental gathering point for like-minded people in our city's capitol.
4371219 12-MAR-13	OBJ	The Fox is a key attraction to London; I know several people who travel to the city just to see The Fox.
		The Intrepid Fox music venue is a Northern muso-cultural landmark. Generations of musicians have graced its stage and I'm lucky enough to have been one of them. I believe that to take away the Fox would be to rob the grass-root music industry of a rite of passage. Many thanks,
4371221 12-MAR-13	OBJ	SDH.
4371223 12-MAR-13	OBJ	This place needs to stay, there aren't enough alternative pubs/live rock music venues as it is, so leave it be, we rockers need to go somewhere! The Intrepid Fox cannot be demolished! Too many Venues are being taken away, we can't let another one go, especially one that's opposite Denmark street which it self is a home Music in central london.
4371778 12-MAR-13	OBJ	I'd like to be informed of the committee date. On the understanding that the Intrepid Fox is a busy and viable business which helps to both draw people into the area and offer a service to the existing community, removing such a place for housing will provide abodes (which will NOT be affordable and will be bought up by private landlords and rented 4371886 12-MAR-13	OBJ	extortionately) BUT will remove all community before residents arrive. One of the very few reasons I pay the extortionate train fares to come into London anymore. It seems like all the decent alternative places have been/are being demolished to make way for homogenized buildings that are slowly turning the great city of London into someplace where I'd rather not spend my time or money anymore.

4371887 12-MAR-13 COMMNT WHOLEHEARTEDLY OBJECT!

4371896 12-MAR-13	OBJ	This is outrageous! As a long standing metal fan and a publican of the Intrepid Fox it has become almost an institution for people to meet others with the same interests. It would a great shame and a hole in society to remove such an iconic establishment!

10.1102 11.11111111		I do object to the Intrepid Fox site being redeveloped, it is a very important part of the rock music scene in London, and offers up and coming band a unique oportunity to reach potential fans.
4374740 14-MAR-13	OBJ	Due to the music profile of the Intrepid Fox exposure here is likely to be more important than at other venues.
4374742 14-MAR-13	OBJ	I object redeveloping the Intrepid Fox site to housing. The Intrepid Fox is a London rock n roll institution and a second home for hundreds of rock/metal fans living in London. Closing it would be a massive blow to the rock music community and remove one of the most unique venues loved by many from the area.

		The Fox is one of the last decent alternative venues in Central London and attracts visitors from the world over. It is a unique place and shouldn't be confined to history books like so many other amazing London venues have been in the recent past. Just around the corner from the Fox is the hole in the ground where the Astoria used to be. Destroyed for the sake of another Tube Station. Because London seriously doesn't have enough of those already.
4371358 12-MAR-13	COMMNT	Given its location (close proximity to Oxford Street / Tottenham Court Road / Covent Garden) the idea that it will be replaced with 'affordable' housing is laughable. If you're going to attempt to destroy something that many people hold dear to them, at least be honest while you do it.
		The redevelopment of this block would remove one of London's key pubs for rock music - a venue with history and nostagia for many people.
		London has become awash with overpriced cocktail bars and to tear down the Interpid Fox would be a great loss.

		Dear Sir or Madam
		The Intrepid Fox Bar has been for a long time an portant focal point for many people: artists, singers, musicians, creative people, locals, tourists the list is rather long, but all contributed to the bar's financial success and that of the surrounding shops and restaurants. Shutting down this bar will not only kill off an important cultural hub of London but will drain the businesses around Centre Point and New Oxford Street.
		Please think well if you would like to let this happen.

4371973 13-MAR-13	OBJ	I object to the redevelopment of the intrepid fox, this is a unique and much loved establishment that provides character to this part of London and would be sorely missed. I also fail to see how this location is suitable for housing.

I am devestated to hear that the site housing the Intrepid Fox public house is to be demolished to make way for a residential plot. This bar is an iconic cultural home for the London music community and helps shape the feel of the area at the end of Denmark St. This is part of the fabric of the area and helps make London individual and attracts devotees of the music scene from all over the World. The proposed plans to demolish The Intrepid Fox, an internationally recognized music venue for alternative music in order to build flats in what is quite obviously an extremely busy and noisy part of London is completely and utterly ridiculous

The music scene of London has already lost The Astoria and Mean Fiddler Music Venues in Tottenham Court Road, two of the greatest music venues in London's modern history and are STILL waiting for the promised replacement venue to come after Boris Johnson's promise to provide a new suitable replacement. And so the plans to demolish yet another iconic alternative music venue for the sake of some pitiful flats which could be situated in a FAR more suitable area of London must be stopped. There are very, very, very few places that retain their unique character, but the Intrepid Fox is such a place. The Hope and Anchor on upper street used to be known for its individual look, but was turned into a typical 'gastro-pub' and was lost amongst the others in the area. The Intrepid Fox is one of the last bastions of a unique location on the steps of the clubs and bars of the west end of London which offers more than just drinks and fun. It offers something of an experience.

Although I no longer live in London any more (after 27 years), I grew up there, and the Intrepid Fox holds some special memories for me. I even pop back there occasionally if I am in the area, as I still work in London.

This pub has fans that go further than the borders of the borough and city that it resides in. To remove it in favour of the popular term 'affordable housino' (for whom in Central London, I ask?) would mean losing something of a cultural icon that you probably are not even aware exists.

If this goes ahead, it will be one more nail in the coffin of the death of your borough's cultural identity

The Intrepid Fox has through over two decades been a gathering place for music lovers from all over the world. Despite the conviction of it's earlier housi in Soho, through deep dedication and hard work, the owners and it's dedicated friends was able to move the pub and keep the spirit alive. One must not forget the remarkable history that The Intrepid Fox contains. Loosing this piece of history and landmark, would without question be like loosing an important part of London itself.

I would also like to draw attention to the issue of non-business related affairs, that not only business related people takes part of the greater London, but also people with interest in culture and music. Hereunder not only commercial culture but also sub-culture and that related. The Intrepid Fox is a great and very important contributor on this marked and will for as long as it exist attract visitors from all over the world to it's remarkable and unique atmosphere. There are very few dedicated alternative music venues/pubs/bars in London. In fact there are far fewer here than in other major cities in Europe (in my own experience Paris, Berlin, Barcelona and Stockholm have more rock/metal bars). This lack makes the Intrepid Fox important and special beyond the great atmosphere, decor and music played, both live and on the soundsystem. It would be a huge shame and a great loss for the alternative community if the Intrepid Fox was redeveloped. Are there no other sites in London to make houses??

I am strongly opposed to the development at centre point that will see the closure of the Intrepid Fox. When will this stop? 4309007 12-WAN-1	J 063	1. Loss of vitality/vibrancy to a commercial street
		The buildings current use as a public house ensures there is an active frontage to the street for protracted periods throughout the day, evening and the night. This active use contributes to footfall on the street and ensures the viability, vibrancy and vitality of the street and its associated commercial usage.
		Residential development cannot duplicate this level of activity and will detract from the commercial viability of the area. 2. The street is situated in a predominantly commercial/retail area (at ground floor) and the property's conversion to residential use is (i) not in keeping with

There are very, very, very few places that retain their unique character, but the Intrepior Fox is such a place. The Hope and Anchor on upper street used to be known for its individual look, but was turned into a typical 'gastro-pub' and was lost amongst the others in the area.
		The Intrepid Fox is one of the last bastions of a unique location on the steps of the clubs and bars of the west end of London which offers more than just drinks and fun. It offers something of an experience.
		Although I no longer live in London any more (after 27 years), I grew up there, and the Intrepid Fox holds some special memories for me. I even pop back

		This pub has fans that go further than the borders of the borough and city that it resides in. To remove it in favour of the popular term 'affordable housing' (for whom in Central London, I ask?) would mean losing something of a cultural icon that you probably are not even aware exists.
		If this goes ahead, it will be one more nail in the coffin of the death of your borough's cultural identity.

London used to have bucket loads of charater, it was once the birth place of pioneering bands, music, creativity, alternative culture etc. People still come this part of London hoping to experience this but over recent years so many places have been shut down due to some idea of "redevelopment"... this area is famous for music, instruments, guitars and artists and nearby is the Fox, a famous alternative music venue. There will be nothing with any personality left in London if this continues, in the end it will just be one giant starbucks, then no one will want to go there.

Further to that lots of gay and alternative places and lots of music venues have been shut down in this area and not one opened, including the Only cafe for gay women in London. Seriously if it keeps going in this direction I can't say it is a liberal diverse city anymore, it is just moving towards homogenised rubbish.

OBJECTIONI

Affordable housing in the west end is a unreasonable idea. The west end is the perfect location for nightlife, bars and entertainment. Not housing. It's always load, busy, bright and polluted.

Even if you set up a big apartment building and people on benefits move in, there is nothing around there that would make a life on a limited budget easy.

It would make more sense, and be more helpful to build these houses further away from central london, close to supermarkets, markets and open spaces,

Also, the intrepid fox is one of a VERY limited amount of rock-bars in central london. Its a venue that allows artist to express themselves and lovers of rock to unite.

Please reconsider.

The intrepid Fox has been on this location for as long as I can remember, there are plenty of unused brownfield sites in London whether it be vacant housing, small businesses that have had to close thus leaving the building available for purchase, as well as disused office space that could be used for development. I don't understand why an existing establishment has to knocked down to make room for these flats, surely it would be cheaper to buy the land you require for this project from a brownfield site to develop on instead of this current plan. It makes no sense, from a financial standpoint or a social standboint i.e the fact is that over the years the patrons of this bar have become a community, it is not so much a bar anymore as it is a vital social hub for

The Intrepid Fox is an internationally renowned landmark for fans of alternative music that provides a central meeting place and rendezvous that is ingrained as a part of the heritage of various subcultures.

As it still enjoys packed-out evenings and caters to a range of people otherwise disenfranchised with the Tottenham Court Road area since the closure of Sin and The Astoria several years ago, to close it down or force it to relocate again would negatively impact this community of people who would otherwise be less-inclined to spend their money in this area.

The Intrepid Fox is the most iconic alternative music bar in London, and is known across the country (and internationally) for its unique environment for music fans and regular pub-goers alike. Too many establishments like this are being replaced by generic high-street shops and soulless housing. The Intrepid Fox is ingrained in London's culture, and to replace it with yet more of this is not only a travesty but will remove what is both a cult tourist attraction and one of the few remaining sanctuaries for alternative music fans. It would be an absolute disheartening shame to see the famous Intrepid Fox close down, as well as a travesty to see it turn into a space for yet more retail/restaurant/housing uses. The Intrepid Fox is an iconic site loved and enjoyed by people from all over the country, and even the world. These plans of development would leave yet another empty hole within London where such strong character of a site once stood. Developments should be made to make our city a better and enjoyable place to work in, live in, enjoy and love, not to depreciate our cultural history. Objection!

4369435 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	It is a disgrace to be demolishing parts of London for yet more over priced flats as coffee shops.
4369436 12-MAR-		The Intrepid Fox is an amazing place to hang out and is more often than not packed out. It's a safe and welcoming environment for people who are into alternative styles and music and there is always a buzz about the place, especially when events are hosted there. Sure it needs a little fixing up (e.g. the toilets!) but there is no place like it and it'd be a great shame to lose it. Also to consider is that the bar staff would be out of a job which isn't ideal! Therefore I'd like the planning application to demolish the fox not to be granted. Besides nobody has the ability to create affordable housing in Camden! Redeveloping the Intrepid fox would be a true loss to a great international bar and venue. Each time i visit the intrepid fox i meet people from all over the world who have heard about the place and purposely made a visit to check it out. It is the most welcoming bar i can say i visit on regular days in London.
4369437 12-MAR-	-13 OBJ	Losing the fox would seriously damage a London subculture once again. London does not need more of its history destroyed to provide " affordable" housing. The whole point of housing in the West End is that it is not affordable. 4369843 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	Although the conversion of Centre Point tower into residential seems helpful in an area dominated by offices and servicies, I have to object with the redevelopment of the Intrepid Fox site, being an icon in the area. 4369844 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	public house that has many loyal patrons to be destroyed in the name of squashing more people into London. I object. There is a definite need in London for affoardable housing but how could affoardable housing be located so close to Oxford Street? There would be no sense of community or saftey for residents. This area is much better suited to bars and shops. It is always crammed with tourists. There are no supermarkets nearby, no provision for children. As someone who is currently looking for affoardable housing in the borough as my husband works in
4369845 12-MAR-	13 OBJ	Camden I can't think of anywhere more unsuitable.
4369846 12-MAR-	-13 OBJ	The Intrepid Fox is one of a ever-decreasing list of classic venues in the country that cater for the rock music subcultures. I would like to see the Fox remain or be moved.
4369847 12-MAR-	-13 OBJ	Extremely important cultural venue The Intrepid Fox would be a terrible loss to the area.
4370538 12-MAR-		The Intrepid Fox caters to a niche market that have far less venues than virtually any other type of clientele in the whole London area. It should be left as it is for this very reason. Central London does not need housing, Other city centres keep their entertainment / nightlife districts central. London seems intent on driving it to the suburbs.
		Fox is a true landmark of London. I am from California, and I have several friends from Germany, Sweden, and Spain. Anytime we visit London the Fox is the first place on list to go. Destroying the Fox is akin to destroying the heart of a dying rock and roll scene in the country that helped develop it.

4370543 12-MAR-	-13 OBJ	The Alternative Community is slowly being eroded in the West End. There are enough empty buildings in London that could be used instead.
4370544 12-MAR-	.13 OBJ	l am strictly opposing this application. I seriously oppose the closing of an important London hotspot for the alternative live music scene. Venues are closing down faster than they are being replaced. The thriving live music scene that is one reason tourists come here, is slowly being killed off by the over-priced gastro-pub and yuppie apartment culture. This is sad and damaging to the creative scenes in London.
		We have seen Astoria closed and not replaced, now the Bull & Damp; Gate and The Intrepid Fox are to follow and it's horrendous that developers can be so Intrepid Fox is one of the few important locations for the rock and metal culture in London. Culture is organic, even you build a new similar enterprise in the same site it may not congregate same people there. For this reason demolishing this building might mean you are wiping away a culture from this area of London. This is not only about the Intrepit Fox building, this is about many coincidences that created a life and culture people now are sharing there.

4372150 13-MAR- 4372518 13-MAR-		Building nice blocks doesn't makes a better city. It is the culture and character that people give life, what makes a global city. I wouldn´t like to close "The intrepid fox" becouse is a very original and marvellous tavern.

4369	9668 12-M A	AR-13	OBJ	I think it is a ridiculous idea to demolish the Intrepid Fox. It is the go to place for all metal and rock fans and fans travel from all over London to go there. It is jam packed every night of the week and even fuller on the weekend. Not only with locals but tourists as well because many European countries have a big rock music following and I am sure with the right publicity it could bring in even more. The problem is big companies trying to get rid of the metal scene but that will not happen, by demolishing venues like the Intrepid Fox the city is only losing money as regulars will just stay at home instead of spending money on travel, food and drink. Do not demolish the Intrepid Fox, it is a staple to the city and to all the people who go there, do not kill London's culture and history just to turn this beautiful and amazingly buzzing city into a collection of cold dead logo blocks.
				It would be an absolute disheartening shame to see the famous Intrepid Fox close down, as well as a travesty to see it turn into a space for yet more retail/restaurant/housing uses. The Intrepid Fox is an iconic site loved and enjoyed by people from all over the country, and even the world. These plans of development would leave yet another empty hole within London where such strong character of a site once stood. Developments should be made to make our city a better and enjoyable place to work in, live in, enjoy and love, not to depreciate our cultural history.
4369	9674 12-M A	AR-13	COMMNT	There has recently been a large residential development on the adjacent site to the east [the orange and green buildings] and if Centrepoint Tower is to be converted into residential units, then why should there be a need to demolish The Intrepid Fox for further residential units. There has recently been demolition of several live music and entertainment venues to the west making way for the Crossrail development [The Astoria and Sin nightclub amongst others] and The Intrepid Fox is now being used as a live music venue [albeit an intimate one]. The Intrepid Fox is an iconic and unique venue which brings together many individuals who do not fit in with mainstream culture, it ties in nicely with the adjacent Denmark Street conservation area as it has a similar style and atmosphere to the tattoo parlour, music rehearsal studio, 12 bar live music venue and various music shops along Denmark Street. The whole area is a spot of musical interest, with curtain road being one of the most fascinating streets of the area with its musical atmosphere, the Intrepid Fox is simply part of it! Don't do the same as you did by closing some of the most amazing book stores that have been replaced by ridiculous patisseries and mainstream shopping chains Charing Cross Road is nearly turning into a new Oxford Street which people do not

It'd be a great shame to lose such a great piece of London eccentricity. The idea of turning a popular social center into a small quantity of low quality housing is insane.

			I visit this venue to watch unsigned young musicians trying to make their way in the world and this is one of a very small number of venues left that support unsigned bands and, therefore, this is one of a small number of opportunities available where bands can be " seen and signed". IT NEEDS TO

			This pub is an institution. It has always been at the heart of the metal community throughout England and is known of world wide. Anyone going to London knows they can go there and be amongst like minded people and enjoy the music. It was bad enough that it's already had to move because of development, but to have to do so again could risk losing this pub all together. Whenever I go to London I always stop in there, it's a meeting place where as a female, if travelling on my own is a pub I know I can walk into on my own and feel comfortable to sit on my own and wait for friends. This pub is a huge part of the London experience for an entire music scene, and there aren't any pubs like it. Would be wrong for it be be sold off again for the sake of a couple of over
