Dear Mr. Hutson,

Here is the photo you asked for. The tree is I think Cryptomeria japonica. It has been dropping clumps of needles for some years, but this has accelerated over the last 2 years and there are now a lot of bare branches. We have also lost a witch hazel from nearby, and a camellia is looking very sick, so I suppose you could suspect honey fungus. But also the tree is very mature.

We will certainly be planting another semi mature tree nearby in due course.

I would like your permission to fell this tree. Please let me know if you want to come and look at it. My phone number is 7794 1880.

Kind regards,

Pen Linell
