Your comments on the planning application: The pond seems like an innovative way of using the 'spare' land, However, I am annoyed at the developers' attitude to noise which can be paraphrased as "you live in a noisy area so it doesn't matter if we add to that noise - including your current quiet periods".

A more considerate approach would be to say "you live in a noisy area and we will try to protect your quiet times - particularly the vulnerable residents of Roseberry Mansions."

And of course ..... Children + water = lots of screaming.

Its also worth noting that the warmth of the Saxon/ Roseberry development means that windows have to be kept open in the summer.

One such solution would be to have adult only sessions in evenings (I am guessing that this would also be commercially viable).
