

Dear Charles

I'm a partner in a housing and development consultancy working mainly on providing new affordable housing (as you can see from our Website, link below). I'm also a Highgate resident. As you can imagine, we're strongly in favour of new housing and believe that the interests of the badly housed (or those not housed at all) should take precedence over the well-housed. However, this doesn't extend to being in favour of all new development – and particularly the plans for Athlone House, which are quite frankly an insult to the local community. Like I hope thousands of others, I urge you to reject this grandiose and tasteless scheme.
