Your comments on the planning application

The plans for the proposed extension are generally good, in that the building itself will not be visible beyond the immediate neighbours above and to the rear of the garden. However, the inclusion of two glazed roof plates has some major consequences.

1. This reduces the privacy of immediate neighbours, and also of the occupants of the proposed extension, as there are windows immediately overlooking the proposed glazed roof plates.

2. This precludes any further extensions on top of the proposed extension by neighbouring flats B and C, should they wish in future.

The inclusion of a light well at the rear of the extension is sufficient to provide light into the new extension, in the same manner as that existing. Absence of glazed roof plates would allow future building extensions above the proposed extension without significant impact on the provision of natural light.
