I strongly object to the over ambitious 'development' proposals to the Water House. I have been a user of the heath all my life, and I contribute financially to the upkeep of the ponds. The impact is too vast and will affect too many people in the community of all ages, including people in wheelchairs who use that path throughout the year. This is a 'public footpath', not a road, it is not wide enough, and these plans are of no benefit whatsoever to the residents and the surrounding communities. The development should be more modest to suit the area and it's respective restrictions. I know of many Camden voters who have a voice. Surely it is time, and it would be wise for councils to listen to their public.
