There cannot be a more appropriate subject for commemoration at this iconic location. It is most fitting that the many thousands of people who travel on the ECML should begin their journeys by passing Sir Nigel Gresley, one of the greatest engineers our nation has produced. The design is stunning, and captures the great man in characteristic pose. What a stroke of genius to place him at ground level, so he doesn't look down on passengers from a plinth. I trust this fine piece of art will grace the concourse for many years to come
