I would like to object to planning applications 2014/4568/A and 2014/4425/P to erect a temporary Paddington Bear Statue at the corner of Montague street and Great Russell Street. This is a form of commercial advertising designed to coincide with Christmas and is not appropriate for the environs of the British Museum. I understand there are other statues planned elsewhere in Camden and that there is an associated charity element (NSPCC) Nevertheless I feel these forms of 3 D advertising are becoming a form of visual pollution and I think the Council should try and restrict them to a minimum if at all
