Dear Sir or Madam,

Please will you rethink your decision to allow the demolition of Athlone House on the edge of Hampstead Heath?

This extraordinary building is part of our national heritage and deserves to be preserved for future generations, surely?

You must be aware that planning permission for the luxury flats in its grounds was given by you to the current owner, a Kuwaiti businessman, on the written assurance from the developers that the house would be restored, and would never have been granted without this commitment. This is clearly a contravention of what was originally agreed - does this betrayal not mean something to you?

English Heritage, the City of London, Save Britain's Heritage, the Ancient Monuments Society, the Victorian Society and the Greater London Authority - these, along with thousands of us who love this great building and the historical significance it represents - have petitioned you and will continue to petition you to save this beautiful house. Our faith in the planning process will be completely undermined if the developers are allowed to destroy it - why have you conceded, entirely wrongly and totally unacceptably in my view, that you "cannot resist demolition"?

Please do not be haunted in the future by this potentially myopic decision - and reconsider before it is too late? Remember, once this destruction occurs, your decision cannot be undone.

Please remember: as the renowned American environmentalist, David Brower, observed, "We don't inherit the earth from our ancestors, we borrow it from our children."

Thank you for your kind attention.

Yours faithfully,

Harold Horwitz
