I object strongly to the proposed roof terrace being built for Ground Floor, 94 Camden Road, London NW1 9EA.

My main concern is that this is a commercial property (Domo restaurant) and as such, the roof terrace will be used to seat customers until the restaurant closes at 11pm each night including weekday evenings.

This roof terrace would be a major noise nuisance, and the residents of Highstone Mansions whose flats face the gardens already have a huge problem with noise as it is, being so close to so many gardens and properties with residents who keep unsociable hours. Being an L-shape, our building means any noise is amplified.

It would also set a precedent for whoever moves in there in the future. It could be taken over by a noisy bar or other business. It has absolutely no place being there in a residential back yard.

Finally, it would present a loss of privacy because the proposed roof terrace is right next to our tall building (and the gardens of other residential properties) so whoever uses it would be able to see into a lot of properties.
