Personally, I am opposed to this scheme particularly given its dominance over adjoining properties and the regrettable standard of design apparently invested in the envelope. Hampstead CAAC has not yet reviewed this but will do so at its 10 December meeting. I will of course let colleagues form their own judgement but my take on this is that Camden should exercise backbone and insist on the high standard of design that is said to be policy and ask for root and branch re-design. I regret that such a practice, originating partly from the magnificent and late-lamented Francis Tibbalds, should be pushed into such a mediocre and harmful offering as manifested by the tower block..
