Central School has been granted Centre of Excellence status by the Higher Education funding council for England - one of very few universities to receive this accolade. Over the years the School has produced an enormous number of actors and film stars who are household names. These names attract large volumes of foreign and UK visitors to theatres and cinemas which in turn produce very substantial sums of money and benefits to the UK economy. The School also produces trained drama teachers who go on to teach in schools across the UK. The proposed new building which is far better than the one which it will replace will provide spaces in order that the School can continue its famous work. The borough of Camden is fortunate in having such an institution in its midst. The design of the structure fits in very well with its surroundings.
