

Community Investment Programme

What is the problem in Camden?

Camden is one of the most diverse and densely populated boroughs in London. It is also one of the most deprived, with high levels of unemployment, poverty and homelessness. The borough is also facing significant challenges in terms of housing, education and health.

Regenerating Camden

What are we doing about it?

Camden Council is working with the private sector to regenerate the borough. This includes investing in new housing, schools, and community facilities. The Council is also working to improve the borough's infrastructure and services.

© Camden Council 2015

New affordable housing

Camden Council is investing in new affordable housing to help solve the borough's housing crisis. This includes building new social housing and supporting the development of affordable private rental properties.

Community facilities

Camden Council is investing in new community facilities to improve the quality of life in the borough. This includes building new libraries, community centres, and sports centres.

Better Homes

Camden Council is investing in home improvement programmes to help improve the quality of housing in the borough. This includes providing grants for energy efficiency improvements and repairs to homes.

© Camden Council 2015

Creating employment

Camden Council is investing in job training and employment programmes to help improve the borough's employment situation. This includes providing grants for businesses and supporting the development of new jobs.

Improving schools

Camden Council is investing in school improvement programmes to help improve the quality of education in the borough. This includes providing grants for schools and supporting the development of new schools.

Schools

Camden Council is investing in new schools to help meet the borough's growing demand for education. This includes building new primary and secondary schools.

© Camden Council 2015

Holly Lodge

Urban regeneration

The Holly Lodge development is a prime example of urban regeneration in Camden. It has transformed a former industrial site into a vibrant residential and commercial hub. The development includes a mix of housing, shops, and community facilities.

© Camden Council 2015

Better living spaces

Camden Council is investing in home improvement programmes to help improve the quality of housing in the borough. This includes providing grants for energy efficiency improvements and repairs to homes.

New homes

Camden Council is investing in new affordable housing to help solve the borough's housing crisis. This includes building new social housing and supporting the development of affordable private rental properties.

© Camden Council 2015

