This is another private school in the Fitzjohn's/Arkwright area that wants to increase its student numbers to generate more money for itself. These private schools do little for the local community if anything and will just add more children to an already overcrowded area. If this was a public school doing public good then this would be far more palatable but this is clearly just to satisfy rich residents of other boroughs outside of Hampstead. This is a terrible idea and should be rejected out of hand. The extension of the basement will set dangerous precedent in the area - what's to stop everyone excavating underground?
