The Grade II listed Georgian buildings at 8-11 Montague Street and 39 Russell Square have been used as office and laboratory facilities recently. The laboratory use has required specialist mechanical services to be installed in the buildings including large sections of ductwork attached to the rear facades of the buildings.

The proposed works to convert these buildings to commercial office use will include not only the refurbishment of the interiors but will remove the external ducts and plant and repair the elevations. This will result in a significant improvement in the appearance of the buildings, especially when viewed from the Museum site.
