Sometimes the pub still have people sitting outside at 2am/3am and no notice to keep the noise down is displayed anywhere. If granting this will increase further the level of noise coming from the premises, I'd strongly object any further changes to the current license. There are other pubs in the area but none of them have people shouting after 11pm and not even sure The Exmouth Arms has a license to stay open after 1am (this was as least the time before change of ownership). I personally called them once at 12:30 am and asked if they could kindly ask the people outside to keep the noise down, as I could not sleep and had work the day later.
