Hi,

I have received a planning application consultation for a 'rear roof dormer to be built onto the upstairs flat in the house and have a few questions. My address is 68A Agamemnon Road, London, NW6 1EH.

Firstly, I would like more information, if available, on the whole project specifically in regards to size and layout, and when and how long the construction for the proposed extension is.

I would also like to know, does my approval of the planning allow whatever building methods necessary to be used to construct the extension? As the only outside access to the rear of the property to construct scaffolding is my patio space and this can also only be accessed through my flat.

Finally, if all of these matters can not be resolved how do i appeal against the planning application? And what does this process involve?

Thanks for your help,

Rob Watson
