I really do not think that glass balustrades are sympathetic with the look of the Victorian terrace houses. Redoing our respective loft, we all try to keep with the look and feel of the surrounding houses. Regardless of the price of the material used, I am not sure that a Benidorm seaside look belongs here.
2015/5585/P	Kate McAndrew and Dafydd Rees	7 Ingham Road London NW6 1DG	15/10/2015 16:27:34	OBJ	We live immediately behind 47 Burrard road. We object to the erection of glass balustrades because sun's UV cannot penetrate glass. We have already lost light because of the mansard roof extension on the same building project at 47 Burrard Road. We understood the terrace would be bordered by metal railings which light and UV can pass through.
