Dear planning department.

This back-land development by vPPR architects should be strongly supported as it shows how clever and thoughtful architecture can preserve and enhance the built environment through adaptive reuse of existing buildings.

However small, it also does have a significant positive public benefit by creating an additional dwelling unit in a time when there is a severe housing crisis in london and will allow a progressive elderly couple to stay in an area they have lived in for most of their lives and continue their sense of home and wellbeing.

Many thanks
