2016/2910/P	Tom Muirhead	4E Rowley Way NW80SF	12/06/2016 16:23:20	COMMNT	I am a local resident and an architect with a particular interest in urbanism and cities. The small footprint of the existing building means that to maximise the profitability of the development, the proposed new building has to be incongruously high in relation to its context. It is far taller than anything around it, which also thereby would establish a precedent for other future developments. Instead, there should be a more wide-ranging plan looking at the context, including the adjacent Overground station and Billy Fury Way, to see what kind of development would create functional and spatial synergies between them.
2016/2910/P	Julia	Crediton Hill	12/06/2016 13:05:56	APP	I've just seen the picture of the future development and the image shows the incongruous nature of the proposal in the context of the height, massing and materials of its immediate surroundings. I am against building it.
