Regarding the revised plan to extend the current extension subterraneously including a sunken portion of the garden. I would like to object based on the restrictive covenant which prohibits anything that potentially may cause structural support issues. Along with further development around the side of the house I believe this extension is too large and out of place for the original footprint of the house and not in keeping with the houses on our development. The roof is flat and heightened at the highest point and extended further into the small garden and will give neighbouring properties a 'hemmed in' feeling, and may prove a security risk as access to other properties will be easier.
