

Key

3.1 Areas of low architectural and historic significance
Internal alterations in these areas will not need listed building consent if the design guidelines prescribed in section 4.1 are followed.

3.2 Areas of moderate special architectural and historic interest
Internal alterations in these areas will affect the special architectural and historic interest of the building and will therefore need listed building consent, where the design guidelines prescribed in section 4.1 are followed, are likely to receive it.

3.3 Areas of high special architectural and historic interest
Alterations will affect the special architectural interest of the building. In order to gain Listed Building Consent, it will be necessary to provide full design details for the proposals and fully justify the practical need for any alterations to these areas

3.4 Areas of very high special architectural and historic interest
Any alteration in these areas would have a significant impact on the special architectural and historic interest of the building.
