The property has a charming, private garden but the landlords now seek to create a roof terrace that will have a direct line of sight into the kitchen, bedroom and, at the end of a passage way, bathroom of the adjoining apartment in 95 Fitzjohn's Avenue, and sight lines into another apartment in the same building. I think it extremely unfair that a property which already has a delightful outside recreation area should invade the privacy of neighbours (in crowded London) by creating yet another outdoor space. Presumably the inhabitants of 95 Fitzjohns will have to keep their blinds or curtains drawn to preserve their privacy. I would be happy to attend any hearing regarding the application and to voice my concerns and objections.
