Sirs

I object to the current plans to take away another public green spaces - these are in short supply anyway - and it seems to conflict with children having activity in outdoor play areas. I understand that, by stealth, a 'green' roof terrace is being promoted but this is private and therefore does not compensate for a public loss.

I also object to the ongoing proliferation of ugly high-rise buildings in West Hampstead, ruining the village feel. The council has a duty of care to look after its residents yet fails to answer key questions about infrastructure to cope with a rise in population. Commuting, walking in the streets, doctors surgeries and schools cannot cater for the current situation - your comments are required.

Regards

Mrs Piggott
