I am a close neighbour and feel very passionate about conserving my privacy. I moved from Islington 15 years ago due to the fact everyother house had a garden overlooked by a balcony or roof terrace. It is incredibly intrusive. My family uses our garden alot, and it is paramount to us to have one place in London that is private and not overlooked. I already have a balcony next door to me that was put up, without planning permission over 20 years ago, and i am trying to get it taken down. This road of houses are now permanently being bought and converted, or extended thus if Mr Jeffery"s is granted permission to build a roof terrace, then that opens the door for anyone to build a balcony or roof terrace, and then these beautiful, private gardens are ruined, and we might as well go sit in a noisy park, in the summer being watched by the public. I strongly feel that the value of these houses, on Ingham Road is due to the fact that each individual garden is not over looked. Granted each owner wants to do what they want with their own property, but at what cost to their neighbours? Where in London can you go outside, away from the public, if not your own garden? Please think carefully about granting the roof terrace, imagine it was your home, your garden, your small space of tranquility, that was being ruined by people watching over you, like me I think it would upset you and stop you going out to relax or simply forget about our busy lives by gardening, away from the noise and glaring eyes of other people. I am very fond of Mr and Mrs Jeffery"s, but I do not wish to feel like "Big Brother" is watching me, I have enough of that in London. Please conserve these small, idyllic, PRIVATE, gardens for a long time to come. If one has to protect 50 percent of all gardens when building an extension, then surely that rule also applies to preserving their privacy from up above, I hope i have said enough as this request deeply saddens and upsets me. Thank you.
