My enquiry is	I understand I live in a conservation area and am a keen gardener and tree lover. However, in the garden of the flat I've recently moved in to, I find I have 2 rather over-sized flowering cherry trees, quite close together and taking up both valuable space and light where I would like to grow new plants, including some new fruit trees. May I have one of these 2 old trees removed in order to make space for some new planting?
