

Good morning David

Thanks for your email.

I'm not sure how the boundary/land ownership issue was resolved and that is part of what I was trying to establish. However, I've reviewed the site with colleagues and I think on balance we can drop the fencing requirement – the existing boundary wall looks substantial in itself. We still require that the developer continue to liaise with our Asset Protection team as necessary prior to work commencing on site given the position of the development in relation to the railway boundary and adjacent train station platforms.

Kind regards,

Matt
