I object strongly to the two applications to develop this site. The workhouse and the burial site are important historical sites which tell the story of Londons healthcare since the 1770s and should be preserved. The site deserves a full archaeological investigation before any planning application is considered. The links to Charles Dickens and Oliver Twist make it interesting and there are also links to Londons industrial history. I would urge Camden planning department to preserve this important historical site.

Yours sincerely

Dr Stella Mills
