Hello Laura,

Here are the other comments I'd like you to log and upload for me please.

No email alert was sent to anyone who had objected before.

I'm concerned that this will affect how many people will object this time as they simply weren't told that the plans had been re-submitted.

With so many objections from the previous application we should all have been notified.

The Ham & High and Camden New Journal are still not stocked in our local newsagent so local residents cannot read about the new plans in the local paper.

Local residents were unaware that the signs on Britannia/ Wicklow Street and King's Cross Road had changed as the old ones were still there.

Despite so many objections against an office block development and requests that the site stay at the same height configuration and remain as light industrial or residential the developer has blatantly ignored the local community.

It is a shame that the developer isn't working with a more imaginative and socially aware architect who could create some really beautiful residential homes within the current height and size of the site which wouldn't blight the local community's homes.

Many thanks

Fiona
