2017/1229/P	Adam Nathaniel Furman	Flat 3 42 Redington Road	26/09/2017 09:59:40	INT	The proposed 8metre high extension to the side of 5 Templewood will be extremely damaging to the setting and access to light of Number 5a Templewood, a distinguished and important example of fine British postwar modernism by Trevor Dannatt, which was designed to nestle into its site, gaining light mostly in the afternoon through a garden patio onto which rooms face, and a large window in the main Living-Dining Room area. Both of these will have their access to afternoon light massively reduced by a grossly overdeveloped 8metre high wall of brick and tile. This will reduce the quality of living of all the main communal areas of the house, as well as forever destroy the intended quality of setting so carefully orchestrated by the original architect, one of our greatest modernists. This application is clearly a greedy over development that has absolutely no regard for its neighbour, for its setting, and provides nothing of any benefit to the area, in fact reducing the real number of dwellings provided in a time when every unit is sorely needed. I strongly recommend this is rejected.
