This would be much less disruptive for the neighbourhood and the environment than allowing the digging of basements to achieve a similar result. It also allows a meaningful improvement of the currently poor level of insulation in those houses. I find that the proposed design fits in well with the existing buildings and streetscape. It also does not look out of place given the higher-rise buildings around (some of which have been recently approved).
