

A technical line drawing of a door. The door features a large rectangular panel at the top and a smaller, recessed rectangular panel at the bottom. On the right side, there is a horizontal handle and a circular lock mechanism. The left edge of the door shows a vertical profile with several small rectangular details, possibly representing hinges or a handle mechanism. The drawing is enclosed in a rectangular frame.

